Three target areas singled out

Loans available to residents to bring homes up to city code

By JIM BRADLEY
Roman Staff Writer

Romulus Mayor James Stewart has announced the beginning of a Community Development Loans and Grants Program designed to help Romulus residents bring their homes up to city housing codes.

The program is funded by money received from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and is to be used only for home-related programs. The project is only one of several currently being funded by Community Development monies.

"This is a program to help lower and moderate income families," Stewart said. "I think it will do a lot of good for the city as people bring their houses up to code and improve their homes."

The mayor said that three target areas have been singled out. Although anyone in the city may apply, the three primary areas to be upgraded are the Gordonier School neighborhood in the northeast section of the city, the Wayne Road-Beverly Road area on the south side of Van Born Road, and Romulus

Village, the old downtown section of the city.

Andrew Powell, loans and grants specialist, said that low-income people may be eligible for a grant which pays for the work required to bring the home up to code, provided the amount of work required doesn't exceed $3,500.

"The only obligation," Powell explained, "is an agreement to pay back all or part of the grant should the owner sell his house within three years after completion of the work."

"Slightly higher income people may be eligible for subsidized loans to improve their homes," he said. "If the person can meet regular bank credit requirements and is eligible for the Loans and Grants Program, he would receive a loan for the work done on his home. The interest would be subsidized by the Loans and Grants Program so that the homeowner would only be paying three-percent interest."

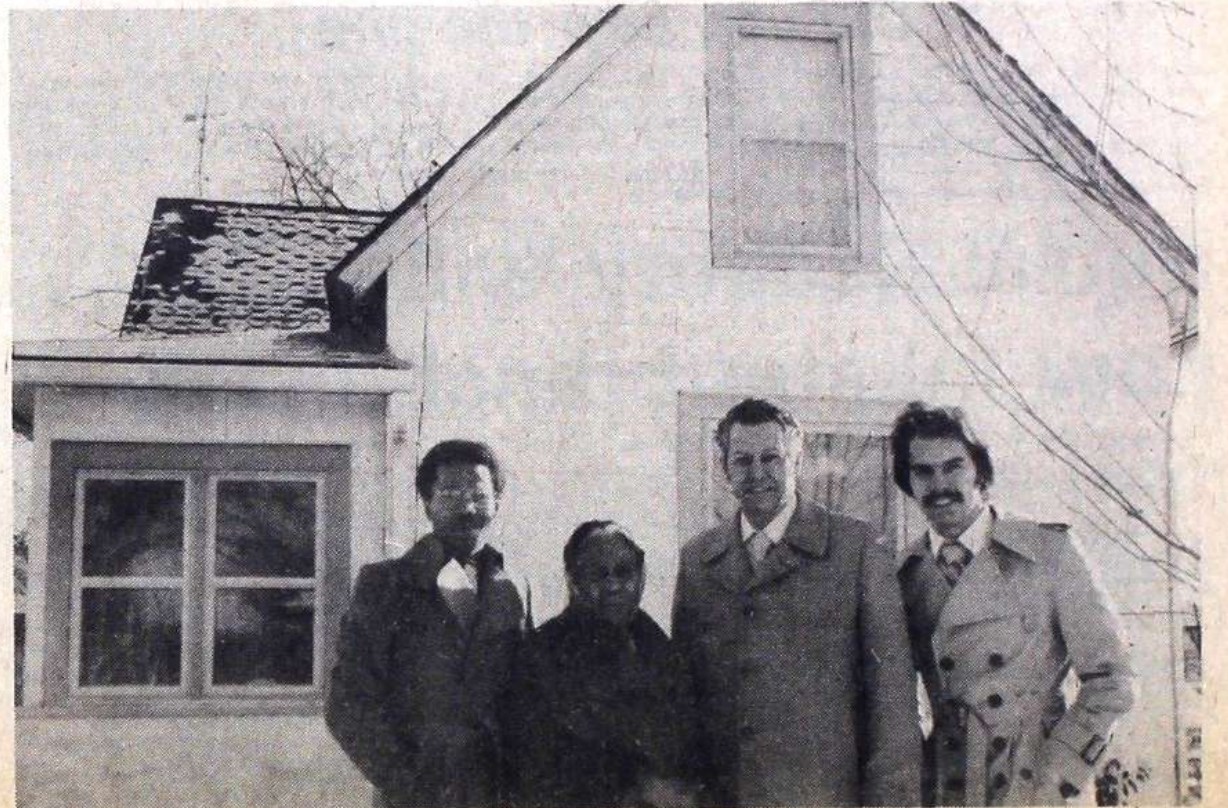

Program guidelines state that every owner-occupant of a single family dwelling in Romulus is eligible to apply for loans or grants except employees of the city and members of their immediate families, or full-time regular employees of the Romulus Help Center and their immediate families.

According to Powell, highest priority will be given to low-income families. Those considered low-income are: a family of two with an annual income of not more than $3,700; family of three, not more than $4,300; family of four, not more than $5,500; family of five, not more than $6,400 per year, and a family of six could not make more than $7,300 annually.

Moderate income is designated as approximately $2,000 per year higher in each of those same categories.

Those in the low-income bracket may receive an outright grant, while moderate-salaried families can obtain a low-interest loan.

Romulus officials said the reason

First loan applicant

The first applicant to be processed for the city's new Community Development Loans and Grants Program to bring houses up to code is Mrs. Sadie Storey, who is more than 80 years old. Mrs. Storey, who lives on Whitehorn Street in the old downtown section of Romulus, is shown with Andrew Powell (left), loans and grants specialist; Mayor James Stewart and Steve Bonczek, community development administrator. City officials hope that low and moderate income families will take advantage of the rehabilitation program.

for the three target areas is because they contain some of the older homes in the city and thus need updating to meet city codes.

Other criteria considered in applicant eligibility are whether they are elderly, handicapped, reside in an area deemed most in need of rehabilitation and those who most need assistance in meeting minimum city housing standards.

Powell added that the Loans and Grants Program is not designed to do "cosmetic" work on homes but to deal mostly with safety features. "Examples of some of the kinds of problems that constitute code violations are inadequate plumbing or heating, leaking roof, unsafe staircases, faulty electrical wiring or any safety or health hazards in the home," Powell said.

He added that city housing inspectors will make initial and final inspections to determine whether there are code violations and whether they have been properly repaired.

The Romulus Help Center is administering the program. Powell may be reached at 941-7970 to answer questions.

Benefits planned

Funds are needed to keep basketball, wrestling alive

Romulus High School basketball players and wrestlers are busier than ever this season. And so are their coaches.

The Romulus Board of Education recently cut financial support for the two sports, but gave the green light for the coaches, players and students to raise money on their own.

The teams must raise $3,600 to finance the two winter sports.

One of the benefits planned is a Student Council-sponsored music concert from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday in the Romulus High School auditorium.

Featured from 6 to 8 p.m. will be the Jive Five, while the Black Suns will keep things hopping from 8 to 10 p.m.

"Both of these bands are local groups and are big favorites with the kids," said Rod Hanna, who is student council advisor and also JV basketball coach.

"We're hoping for a big turnout — not only for the kids to hear the music, but all the proceeds will go to help the basketball and wrestling programs. These music groups are donating their time and energy and we really appreciate it."

High school coaches will help supervise the event. Tickets can be bought now for $1.50, but will cost $2 at the door Friday night. They can be purchased from any student council member and also at North and South Junior High Schools.

Hanna announced two other fundraisers that will bring money into the empty sports coffers. "We're holding a Christmas tree raffle and will raffle off five evergreens," he said. "Three trees have been donated by the Romulus Jaycees and two others sold to us at cost. We think this is really nice of them and tickets for the raffle will be sold five for a $1."

Varsity and JV basketball players and varsity wrestlers along with their coaches, will be selling the Christmas tree raffle tickets.

The third event is a Christmas caroling venture planned by Meri-De Guerin, vice-president of the Student Council.

"She's a tremendously hard worker and did a super job on the Homecoming we had," Hanna said. "She organizes things so very well and she and other student council members are going out caroling in the days to come. These young people are the greatest and deserve all the credit in the world."

Assistant attorney is certified

Frank Stanczak, assistant Romulus city attorney, is now a full-fledged member of the Michigan bar after being sworn in last month.

Born in Newcastle, Pa., Stanczak has a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Detroit and recently received his law degree from the U-D School of Law. He is also a member of the Pennsylvania bar. He lived in Philadelphia from January until May, 1976, when he moved to Romulus, and has been serving the city for the past several months.

Congratulations

When Frank Stanczak (left) assistant city attorney, was admitted to the Michigan bar last month, he was congratulated by all those at city hall. Several even shared a celebration sip of champagne with him. Here Stanczak is congratulated by Mayor James Stewart (center) while City Attorney Robert Reese looks on.

ILLUMINATING Romulus to light yule tree, welcome Santa

Romulus will brighten up considerably Friday night when five-year-old Mary Neighbors throws the switch that ignites the city Christmas tree and the multi-colored lights on the Civic Center buildings amid the pageantry that attends the annual event.

Mary a kindergarten student at Halecreek Elementary School, will join Mayor James Stewart, other city dignitaries and the Bicentennial choir in ceremonies that will herald the coming of Santa Claus.

Sponsored each year by the city recreation department, the holiday event will start at 6:30 p.m., with the Bicentennial choir singing Christmas hymns and songs.

The big attraction (who else but Santa) is slated to arrive at 7 p.m. and will host a Christmas Party inside city hall, with his lap being a special seat of honor for all the boys and girls as they fill his ear with their urgent requests for toys on Christmas morning.

"Last year more than 500 children turned out and this year the number could jump to 700 kids," said Marie DeBuysscher, director of the Parks and Recreation Department. "Each child will receive a small bag of candy with an orange and apple in it," she said. "It's an exciting time and everybody seems to enter into the spirit of the occasion."

Coffee, hot chocolate and donuts also will be served while the youngsters are chatting with St. Nick.

Ready for Santa

Romulus residents will gather at city hall at 6:30 p.m. Friday for the annual lighting of the Christmas tree, as well as lights on the civic center buildings.

Bonnie Lozier, secretary to Mayor James Stewart, makes a last-minute snowy visit to see that everything is ready for Santa's arrival Friday.

Youngsters attending the Huron Countryside Nursery find that stories, as well as physical exercises, music and finger and easel painting, can be fun while they expand their awareness of the world around. The nursery, which offers a program for youngsters 2½ to 5 years of age, currently is accepting membership applications for its classes, offered on Monday and Friday mornings or afternoons. For further information on the nursery contact Marge Bergman at 941-3090. Included in the program are field trips to such places as the Toledo Zoo and the South Huron Apple Orchards.

Social Security will open new Inkster branch office

Plans for the opening of a fulltime Social Security Office in Inkster have been announced in Washington by Congressman William D. Ford, whose congressional district includes that Western Wayne County community.

The new office will open Monday and will be located at the southwest corner of Michigan Avenue and Inkster Road.

The new office will serve the residents of Inkster, Belleville, Garden City, New Boston, Romulus, Wayne and Westland and will relieve the work load at the Social Security's Dearborn office.

Robert Long, a veteran Social Security administrator, has been named branch manager of the Inkster Office, Congressman Ford said. A formal grand opening of the office will be held early next year when the 15th District Democrat will present Long with an American flag which flew over the Capitol.

Originally, plans for the new office started four years ago, with a lease contract being awarded in July 1973. However, the contract was cancelled a year later because of financial problems.

Congressman Ford renewed efforts to obtain the office, but was stymied by a freeze on new leases, which went into effect in the summer of 1974.

Based on the increasing work load at the Dearborn office, Ford argued in favor of the office, seeking a waiver of the freeze order on the grounds that the need was critical.

The General Service Administration granted the request and plans for the new office were approved early this year.

Indigent hospital program is halted

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has voted a temporary halt in implementation of a new policy requiring the medically indigent to go to Wayne County General Hospital (WCGH) for non-emergency treatment.

The county legislators, meeting Dec. 2, decided to discontinue the policy, which became effective Dec. 1, pending a report on its impact from their Human Resources Committee.

The proposal that its implementation be delayed pending receipt of the Human Resources Committee report was made by Commissioner Jarrette Simmons (D-Detroit), the board's vice-chairman.

However, an immediate halt to the new practice was ruled out when Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia) later filed a motion for reconsideration of the decision to declare a hiatus. Mrs. Dumas contended the proposal was improperly before the board.

A motion to reconsider delays implementation of a decision until after the motion has been voted on by the board. The next board meeting is scheduled for Dec. 16.

The board voted to exempt maternity cases from the patients who would be required to go to the county hospital for treatment.

The new policy was adopted as part of the 1976-77 county budget as a move to save $2.5 million annually by increasing patient utilization of WCGH, located in Westland.

However, the Board of Commissioners instructed the Human Resources Committee to hold public hearings on the question of whether or not the new policy would impose undue hardship on any citizen or institution.

At two such hearings, Detroit city representatives have charged the new policy will have a severe financial impact on Detroit General Hospital where many such patients have been treated.

Other speakers at the hearings have claimed that many in need of medical treatment will forego it rather than travel to the county hospital 16 miles west of Detroit.

Patients affected by the new policy are persons with medical needs beyond their financial means who are not covered by Medicare, Medicaid or hospital-medical insurance.

Field trips part of life at cooperative nursery

"...and the bee kisses the apple blossom."

That was just one of the many ways one teacher used to explain nature's cycle to youngsters visiting the South Huron Apple Orchards recently.

The youngsters attend the Huron Countryside Cooperative Nursery and were visiting the New Boston facility along with teachers and parent volunteers to learn the complex process of making apple cider.

The tour of the orchard and cider mill, which ended with a helping of cider and doughnuts, was one of many field trips that children at the nursery make. Recent journeys took the youngsters to the Toledo Zoo, on a nature hike in the Oakwoods Metropark and a visit to a pumpkin patch.

According to spokesman for the nursery, the field trips are planned to expand the children's awareness and interest in the world around them. Augmenting those trips are parties on all the major holidays as well as each child's birthday.

The purpose of the Huron Countryside Nursery is to maintain and administer a program for preschool children 2½ through 5 years of age, the spokesman added. The curriculum has been established to encourage a child's social and emotional development and to stimulate in the parents an awareness of this development, the spokesman said.

Some of the classroom activities at the nursery are easel and finger painting, cutting, music, stories and physical exercises. The focal point of the classroom is a miniature work bench where, with adult supervision, the children use a real saw, hammer and screwdriver.

The children also are encouraged to help clean up after each activity is finished, the spokesman added.

Parents join in the classroom fun about once a month and attended monthly meetings to plan future events, the spokesman continued. Some of the upcoming events for the nursery's youngsters are a trip to the Taylor Fire Department and hearing and vision tests and fluoride treatments through the Wayne County Department of Health.

The nursery is a member of the Greater Detroit Co-Operative Nursery Council Inc., which organizes workshops for parents. The workshops are scheduled twice during the school year, with many resembling rap sessions rather than lectures, the spokesman added.

Nursery sessions are held on Mondays and Fridays in the morning or afternoon, and applications for membership now are being accepted. Interested parents can contact Membership Chairman Marge Bergman at 941-3090 or write her at 15519 Middle Belt Road, Romulus 48174.

12 floats join parade roster

Belleville's annual Christmas Parade plans are going full speed ahead, with 12 floats and several bands added to lend excitement to the yuletide journey down Main Street on Dec. 18.

"Things are progressing very well and we're extremely pleased at the response we've received," said Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce secretary Leona VanBuhler. "We still need more bands and we'd like to have more floats take part also."

"We'd like to see every segment of the community represented — churches, service clubs, all organizations and individuals."

This is the time for all the people of the area to show their Christmas spirit in a united effort."

Floats and all other units will gather in the Belleville High School parking lot at 10 a.m. Dec. 18 to prepare for the parade. The floats will travel down Columbia Street to Five Points, turn north on Main Street to Old City Hall.

During the ceremonies, Mayor Justin Emerson of Belleville will present Santa Claus with the key to the city. Although time is flying by, Mrs. VanBuhler said she still has time to enter the parade by calling her at the chamber office at 697-7151.

The chamber also is inviting the community to join in the trimming of the city's two Christmas trees at 7 p.m. next Wednesday evening. One tree is in front of Old City Hall — 405 Main St. — and the other stands on the lawn of the present City Hall. Each family, group and individual is encouraged to make or buy an ornament to decorate the evergreens.

The Chamber of Commerce Christmas Luncheon will be held from 12 until 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Rogalle's, 11175 Haggerty Road, Belleville. Price is $4 per person for the buffet luncheon and reservations must be made in advance by calling 697-7151.

It's a ...

It came out of the sky, barely missing striking a youngster as she watched television in her parent's mobile home, and after all the excitement of what was it had died down the "it" was discovered to be an 18-inch long broken blade of a tractor brush-cutter. The blade, which was airborne for about a quarter of a mile after hitting a rock, was about an inch thick and weighed about 20 pounds. It came from a "down-to-earth" National Hydro-Ax tractor, which replaced the missing blade after the airborne mishap. Photos by ANP Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko.

St. Paul's to dedicate new church sanctuary

Sunday morning's dedication of the new St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church sanctuary will culminate eight years of "hard work and diligent prayer."

The 10 a.m. service consecration sermon will be by The Rev. John Martin of Milwaukee, Wis., who pastored the Belleville church from 1940 to 1945.

"This is a great day to the glory of God and our Lord Jesus Christ," said The Rev. Walter Henning, pastor of the church. "This building was made possible by the generous offerings of our members and the assistance of the Lutheran Association for Church Extension."

The dedication service will be held in conjunction with the 35th chairman of the Lutheran Association for Church Extension. Coffee and cake will be served after the service.

"This is one of the happiest days of my life and we want to thank all those who prayed, worked and gave so we might see this new edifice rise to the glory of God," Pastor Henning said. "We are a truly grateful people and give all praise to our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ."

This is one of the happiest days of my life ...

anniversary of the church, located at 47445 W. Huron River Drive. During that time, the church has been served by five pastors.

The Rev. R. Roland Scheele, the church's first minister pastored the congregation four months from September until December 1939.

After The Rev. Martin's 5-year ministry, The Rev. C. Kipfmler had oversight of the congregation from 1946 to 1950 and was succeeded by The Rev. Orville Kreie, who pastored the flock from 1951 until the present pastor, The Rev. Henning, came in 1961.

After the morning dedication service, the congregation will return to its former location at 494 Columbia for a 2:30 p.m. dinner and a message from guest speaker The Rev. Albin Stanfel.

There will be a 4 p.m. Sunday church service in the new sanctuary in honor of the church dedication and in observance of the 35th anniversary of St. Paul's congregation.

Speaker for the occasion will be Professor Paul Kuske of the Michigan Lutheran Seminary and

Errand of mercy

Running another errand of mercy are these three FISH volunteer workers who help needy people in the Belleville-Romulus area. Getting ready to store food donated by local school children and members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Belleville are Mrs. Odalee Hoeft (from left) of Belleville, Chairman Margaret Leduc of Romulus and John Lochrie of Belleville. Persons wishing to help serve with FISH can call 326-5161 or write P.O. Box 313, Belleville.—ANP photo.

FISH 'Act of love' helps needy

"Whenever an act of love is shown, God is making His presence known."

This is the motto of a Belleville Romulus community volunteer program called FISH.

The name is derived from ancient Greek affirmation where the first letters of the Words: "Jesus Christ, God's Saviour Son," are spelled I CH THOS, which is the Greek word for FISH.

For the past 1½ years the local volunteer program has assisted needy families with food, transportation to and from health care facilities and has provided shelter for those needing homes.

Because the work is done basically on an anonymous basis, volunteers don't like to mention their names, but they need more helpers to carry out their "mission of mercy" but they need more helpers to carry out their "mission of mercy" in the name of God.

Originally starting in England, and the first American (FISH) chapter began in 1964 in West Springfield, Mass. Today there are more than 1,000 chapters in this country.

The Belleville-Romulus chapter is supported by various denominations, community service groups and individual contributions. It maintains a 24-hour answering service where callers may leave their name and phone number and type of help required. The answering service contacts the "Fish of the Day," a designated chapter member, who arranges for a volunteer to provide the service.

"Persons volunteer their services to provide rides one day each month or commit themselves for a few hours per month for phone duty," said Mrs.

Eunice Demick, spokesman for the group.

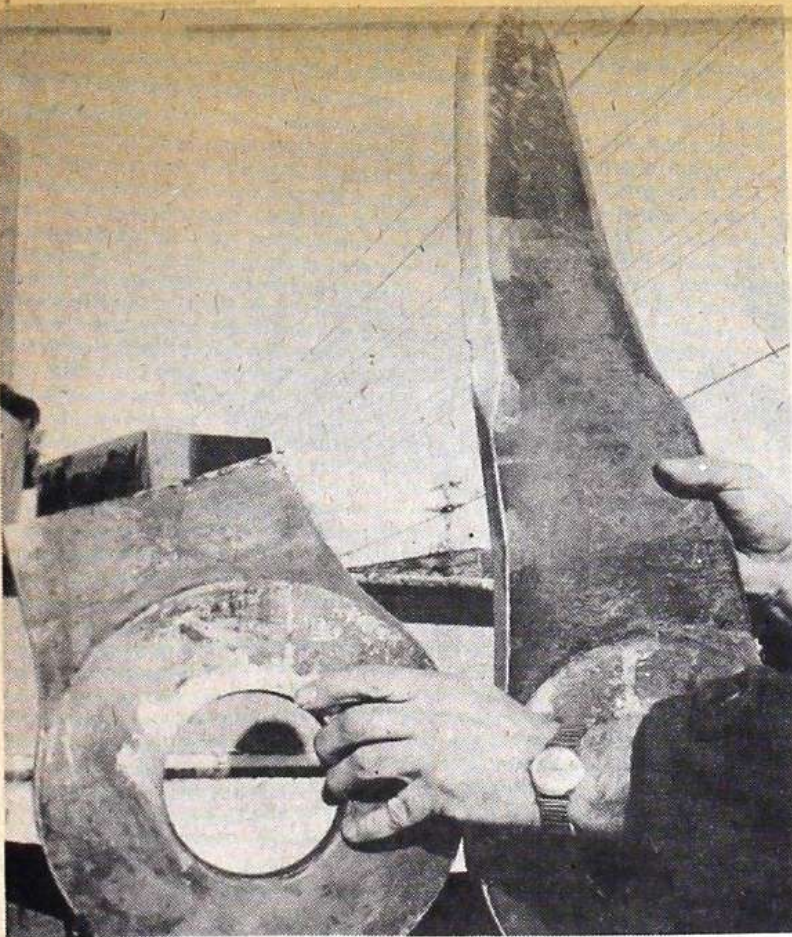

"We have been efficiently handling 50 calls per month for the past 18 months."

"Many of the FISH volunteers have been with the program since the beginning and are all enthusiastic, dedicated people, receiving much more than they give form their service of love."

Although FISH functions effectively and is very proud of its record, they want more people to help serve their fellow man.

Mrs. Demick said those interested in donating some of their time to help others can call 326-5161 or write FISH, P.O. 313, Belleville, 48111.

"Whenever an act of love is shown, God is making His presence known" is the motto of the group, and these people are helping "make God's presence" known.

Good samaritans

Christmas spirit seems to prevail when Sumpter Goodfellows get together — especially when their purpose is to see that no needy child has to go without a Christmas. Elected officials join police and fire department employees and other interested citizens to sell Goodfellows Newspapers. Many people are happiest when they're working to help their needy neighbors. You'll be seeing

Sumpter Goodfellows seek funds

A large contingent of hardy Goodfellows will take to the streets this Saturday to see that no needy Sumpter Township family has to go without food, clothing or toys this Christmas.

Elected township officials, police and fire department workers as well as volunteers from many other sectors of the area will be selling Goodfellows newspapers on major street corners and in busy shopping areas. All the benefits will go to provide gifts for needy children. Kicking off the many activities on Saturday will be a 7:30 a.m. breakfast for volunteer Goodfellows paper salesmen. The sale will go on throughout the afternoon and the day's full schedule will be culminated with the big annual Christmas party for children at 7:30 p.m.

Both the breakfast and children's party will be held at the Sumpter Social Civic Club, 19865 Sumpter Road, Belleville.

Donations from Sumpter merchants and organizations will be welcome and many more volunteers are needed to sell the papers.

"We always seem to have a pretty good turnout of volunteers and the people of Sumpter Township look on this as a real time to help the needy," said Ed Schwartz of the Sumpter Goodfellows.

"Of course, we can always use more volunteers to sell the newspapers and we hope the merchants will be generous as we try to help more people than ever before," he said.

Crafts of Yule recall simple pleasures

Henry Ford Museum recreates the special spirit that marked Christmas long ago this holiday season. Continuing through Jan. 2, "The Crafts at Christmas" recalls the quieter days when Americans had time to enjoy the simple pleasures of Yuletide festivities and fellowship. Along the museum's Street of Early American Shops, more than a dozen costumed craftsmen demonstrate the skills that provided earlier generations with not only holiday luxuries, but the necessities of life as well. Bayberry candles, baskets and brooms, wooden toys and fresh green wreaths are among the items taking form under the skilled hands and watchful eyes of these experienced artisans.

The domestic arts are an important part of these demonstrations, too. Still more craftsmen weaver cloth, stitch colorful quilts and bake tasty Christmas cookies, according to the traditions of long ago. Visitors also may watch demonstrations of lace making, macrame, counted thread embroidery, tole painting and doll making reminiscent of the time when gifts were carefully handmade and lovingly exchanged.

The entire museum is decked out in Christmas finery for this special holiday observance. Wreaths, ribbons and cedar roping decorate lampposts and doorways, while old-fashioned Christmas trees enhance the spirit along aisles and in hallways. In the Decorative Arts Galleries, garlands of greens, centerpieces of fruit and fanciful decorations from out of the past grace the period settings and alcoves.

Yuletide music completes the festive air. Instrumental tunes appropriate to the season are performed from time to time by costumed musicians on antique instruments. At other times, choirs proclaim the joys of Christmas in song.

In the special exhibit area, holiday visitors still will have the opportunity to see the Museum's acclaimed Bicentennial exhibition,

"The Struggle and the Glory." Based on a priceless collection of period manuscript, letters, maps, cartoons and broadsides, this exhibit tells the story of life in America from 1755 to 1789. "The Struggle and the Glory" continues through Jan. 2.

Hours in the museum are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., on weekends. From Dec. 26 through 31, the museum will remain open until 8:30 p.m., with a special program each evening in the Museum Theater and good service available at family prices in the museum's Heritage Hall dining room.

There is no additional charge for "The Crafts at Christmas" or "The Struggle and the Glory" beyond the regular museum admission.

Tinsmithing stars at collectors show

The almost extinct craft of tinsmithing will be demonstrated at the Detroit Christmas Antique and Collectors show now through Sunday at the East Eight Mile Light Guard Armory in Detroit.

Gordon Brugman, a 26-year-old tinsmith who apprenticed at Greenfield Village, will give daily demonstrations of his craft at the Detroit Christmas Antique and Collectors Show, using tools that date back to 1850. His skills will turn out cookie cutters, candle sticks, lanterns, sconces and perhaps a few tin whistles for youngsters.

The expression "not worth a toot" comes from the days long ago when youngsters would pester the local tinsmith to make them whistles from scraps of tin.

Also in colonial days, tinsmiths were called whitesmiths, or brightsmiths, because of the color of the metal they worked with, as opposed to the blacksmiths.

Brugman, an East Detroit Resident who is making a career out of his acquired skill, now is teaching his wife, Cathie, tinsmithing. When she is through her apprenticeship, he claims his wife will be the only female tinsmith in the country. There now are only two dozen recognized tinsmiths in the United States.

The Detroit Christmas Antique and Collectors Show also will feature a tiffany lamp collection, highlighted by a $35,000 dropped head blue Tiffany dragonfly lamp. Other signed Tiffany lamps will be exhibited that are valued from $10,000 to $30,000 each.

Also on exhibit will be one of the country's largest collections of antique reference books. In this collection there are more than 2,000 different reference books categorized for every level of interest, from the budding antique collector to museum curators.

Items from all over the world will be exhibited by North America's leading antique dealers, with items including jewelry, clocks, furniture, primitives, brass beds, trunks, lamps, post cards, posters, books, jade, stained glass windows, silver, spoon jewelry, crystal, decorator accents and much more.

The Detroit Christmas Antique and Collectors Show will be open until 10 p.m. tonight and 12 to 10 p.m. through and from 12 to 8 p.m. the final day, Sunday.

Pinocchio grows up in TAFY version of childhood classic

The adventures and growing up experiences of the favorite storybook character, Pinocchio, will come alive on stage when Laurie Wagman's American Theater Arts for Youth (TAFY) presents "Pinocchio," Dec. 20 - 22, at McAuley Auditorium at Mercy College of Detroit.

The original musical follows the famous puppet figure from the color and gaiety of the carnival, to the temptations of Candyland, to the belly of a whale—with each new experience bringing him closer to developing the human qualities that finally make him worthy of being changed into a real little boy.

Don Kersey, TAFY's artistic director, wrote "Pinocchio" and is directing the production for the McAuley stage.

Enhancing Kersey's original adaptation of "Pinocchio" are arrangements by musical director Don Mannon and beautiful costume designs by Douglas Ensign.

Portraying Pinocchio in the TAFY production is Scott Gordon, who recently was seen as Tom in the TAFY production of "Tom Thumb."

Geppetto, the jovial puppet-maker whose artistry and love are basic factors in the transformation of Pinocchio from a wooden puppet into a real little boy, is played by Michael Corr.

The crafty Fox, who repeatedly lures Pinocchio from the path of goodness and responsibility, is played by Bruce Ritter.

American Theater Arts for Youth will provide a study guide to assist teachers and youth leaders in taking the experience of live theater back to the classroom and community.

Performances are scheduled for 10 A.M. and 12:30 P.M. For ticket information, call toll-free-800-523-4540.

Choral ensemble to present concert

"Christmas is coming, the geese are getting fat." These lively words from an old Christmas round will set off a medley of traditional carols when the University of Michigan-Dearborn's Choral Ensemble presents a Christmas concert at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

The traditional concert will be held at the First Presbyterian Church of Dearborn, 600 N. Brady Road. The program is being offered as the final event in a 7-week Family Night Educational series held at the church. The free concert is open to the public.

Other compositions on the holiday program are the Spanish Carol, "Fum, Fum, Fum," a modern carol by Natalie Sleeth, "Noel, Noel, A Boy Is Born," and a setting of the old English carol, "The Holly and the Ivy."

The Choral Ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Alexander J. Turco, is made up of 40 students and persons from the community who enjoy choral singing. Membership in the ensemble is open to anyone interested in singing and rehearsals for the winter semester will begin in January. For further information, call 561-1012.

Holiday concert 'goes' baroque

Seventeenth and 18th century music, performed on antique instruments, will highlight the Christmas concert by the Oberlin Baroque Ensemble at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The concert, part of the Fair Lane Music Guild chamber music series, will be performed amid the holiday decorations at the Fair Lane Conference Center, former home of Henry Ford, located on the University of Michigan - Dearborn campus.

The Oberlin Baroque Ensemble is one of only a dozen groups in the world which perform entirely on authentic instruments of the period.

The holiday concert will be preceded by the Fair Lane Music Guild's annual pre-concert dinner, also scheduled for Fair Lane. UM-Dearborn's Madrigal Society, under the direction of Dr. Philip Peter, will provide the dinner music.

Punch and hors d'oeuvres will begin at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Cost for the benefit dinner is $13.00 and reservations may be made after today by calling Mrs. John Heinrich, dinner chairman, at 271-5615.

Concert Tickets are $4.50 and $2 for students, and may be purchased separately.

Poetry Corner

The following poems were written by Betty Hunter, of Belleville. The poem, "On Our Friends' Passing," was inspired by the deaths of four well-known Belleville citizens—

Rudolph Racette, Orville Dolph, George Wells, and Lloyd Freeman—all of whom died within the past three months.

ON OUR FRIENDS' PASSING

They slip away - we know they will -
But oh, the aching void they leave!
While summer marched along to frost
Four friends have gone for whom we grieve.

First, friendly Rudolph with the quick smile
Departed, his body wasted by disease.
Alert, keen-minded Orville, nearly ninety,
Set down to rest and took Death's ease.

TO SEE MEMORIALS

Today I thanked God that He let me see
A bit of my memorial while I'm here -
These friendly smiles, those measured words of praise,
That look of love in eyes that I hold dear.

Nancy's and Shirley's gentle jokes and Wanda's calm,
Myrtle's flowers, (love's labor is not lost)
Children who call my name with gladness,
Friends who help ease my load at their own cost.

This inner glow of joy when with His words
I help to lift another's troubled heart.
The satisfaction of a job well done
In which I have a small, but my own, part.

For oh, time is so fleeting and

Before him, faithful George, a clever member
Who had helped his club so many ways;
Now gentle Lloyd, surprised by that grim touch,
Quietly has ended his square-dancing days.

Could we but have known their datelines,
Would we have left them less alone?
Surely they must have known we really loved them!
Can that for our selfishness atone?

Forgetful!
Great granite monuments can weather fast.
Selfish and vain, I hope for fond remembrance
When soon now is my own life cycle past.

Far better are rewards that I can see here,
Though minuscule in God's eternal plan.
This will suffice before I reach His heaven -
That I have aided, some, my fellowman.

And sensed the warmth of their returned affection,
And shared the peace of simple faith in God.
Ah, these are dearer far than marble namestone!
I see memorials this side of the sod.

On the brighter side

'Won't someone hang a label on me'

By JIM BRADLEY
Enterprise-Roman Staff Writer

Hey Mabel, forget the label!
Ever since the first card-carrying vendor yelled, "You can't tell the players without a scorecard," everybody has had to be labeled for identification.

And to tell you the truth, I don't know what I am.

I've heard of people trying to "find" themselves or find their niche in life, but this is ridiculous. Am I on the left or right politically? I wish someone would hurry up and hang a label on me so I knew what I was and where I'm headed. I don't think I'm either a right-winger or a left-winger — in fact, most of the time it seems I'm right in the middle of things, period!

Back in 1964 when Nelson Rockefeller stumbled in his spring for the White House steps, one of his favorite discourses stressed him as "being in the mainstream of American thinking." More than being in the "mainstream," he was all "wet." He chided the fellow who finished second in the 1964 Presidential race for being out of that same "mainstream."

Well, Rockefeller was prominently in the news as governor of New York State until they wanted to take him out of public view — they made him Vice-President. If there's a more anonymous job in the country than vice-president, I don't know what it is unless it's my job as a reporter on this weekly newspaper.

I've been hiding here behind my typewriter for two months and no one has come by to see how I'm doing. (I think my editor is trying to pretend I don't exist). For that matter, I don't think anyone knows I exist. No one reads my column that I know of.

I take that back, I've received two letters. One said I was a lousy writer — the other was a pack of lies.

Where was I? Oh yes, talking about labels. All of this comes back to me now after a well-known right-winger just left our office. He wasn't Gordie Howe, either. Howe is a famous right-winger, but he keeps his thoughts on ice. Now I say this fellow who just walked out the door is a "right-winger" because he had a label on his suit coat that was hung there by a liberal.

I just looked on my suitcoat and there's no label. Somebody forgot to hang one on me and I'm visibly upset. What am I? In high school I was a left-winger on the hockey team. When basketball rolled around, I was on the extreme right — holding down the forward position on that side. In the spring, my young thoughts lightly turned to the "middle of the road" — centerfield on the baseball team, to be exact.

And all this makes for a pretty confused set-up. But it does give you a pretty well-rounded education. (At least my wife says I look well-rounded — especially after a big meal).

These liberal and conservative tags are very pretty, depending which side of the spectrum you view them from. But I haven't got mine yet. People around town are wearing Bicentennial buttons and flags and other pins, and I feel practically undressed without some kind of label. I think I'm quite liberal in my spending habits although my wife would probably say I'm very conservative. (Isn't MacDonald's considered a "ritzy" place?). My eating habits are far from "moderate" but I wouldn't exactly call them radical or extremist in nature.

My doctor may be a radical, though. He said something about an "ultra" violet lamp. Most preachers must be liberal. The Book of Proverbs in the Bible says: "The liberal soul shall be made fat," and most preachers are fat!

But as far as I'm concerned, labels are for jars or cans. This is where they belong.

If I had to label myself, though, I think I'd say I was an ultra-conservative radical with moderately liberal conservative extremist leanings. I must be honest and say I have a tendency to lean to the right. (My right leg is shorter than the other).

After you've made sure your label is in place and checked everybody else's, would you see if there's one left over and send it to me?

A commentary

Regulating competition isn't easy

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — Here's a delightful little poem for you. I have subtitled it "The Bureaucrat's Explanation."

"The rule of law, in complex times,
Has proved itself deficient.
We much prefer the rule of men!

It's vastly more efficient.
Now, let me state the present rules."
The lawyer then went on,
"These very simple guidelines
You can rely upon:
You're gouging on your prices if
You charge more than the rest.

But it's unfair competition
If you think you can charge less.

"A second point that we would make
To help avoid confusion:
Don't try to charge the same amount:
That would be collusion!
You must compete. But not too much.
For if you do, you see,
Then the market would be yours —
And that's monopoly!"

I'd like to claim to have written it, but both honesty and a copyright make that inadvisable. The two stanzas are from a much longer work by Richard W. Grant, entitled, "Tom Smith and His Incredible Bread Machine," and are quoted here with his permission.
That lighthearted poetry offers food for thought on two levels, one superficial and the other profound. First, and obviously, it pays tribute to the very real frustrations of today's business managers in their struggles with a regulatory bureaucracy that seems impossible to please.

And second, it raises an important question about our economic system. Karl Marx pointed out that a competitive economic system such as laissez-faire capitalism theoretically should not be able to survive, because the stronger competitors would eliminate the weaker until eventually only one firm remained, and then there would be no competition.

We have more-or-less accepted that Marxist fear and tried to prevent it from coming to pass with laws against restraint of trade and monopoly. The problem with this approach, however, is that laws designed to preserve competition tend to prohibit it, as the poem so cleverly illustrates. And in discouraging competition, they deny to the consumer its benefits: a superior combination of price, quality, service, style, etc.

Let's you think this is an excessively theoretical discussion, consider two recent real-world examples:

Item one: The Federal Trade Commission has accused General Foods of not charging enough for its "Maxwell House" brand coffee.

Item two: The Federal Trade Commission has demanded that Borden, Inc., license other companies to make and sell its brand of reconstituted lemon juice, "RealLemon." Not only that, but Borden is also supposed to let them call their products by the same name. Reason? "RealLemon" was too popular with consumers.

I'm not about to recommend junking the antitrust and antimonopoly statutes. But it is a curious paradox, when you stop to think about it, that government efforts to promote competition can sometimes be anticompetitive.

Ask the governor

Watch for pitfalls when investing

QUESTION: I understand the Corporation and Securities Bureau of the Michigan Department of Commerce has intensified efforts to inform Michigan citizens of the dangers and pitfalls in investing. What should we be on the lookout for when investing our money?

GOVERNOR: Securities fraud represents not only large monetary loss but often crushed dreams and visions of Michigan citizens. The Corporation and Securities Bureau has described the various securities frauds and offered tips on how to avoid them in a series of press releases. Here are a few points:

● Be suspicious of any offer to buy or sell a security at a price "away from the market" because such offers are rarely legitimate.

● Check with the Bureau; it registers securities broker-dealers and their agents. The Bureau will verify if a company or individual is properly registered. Never deal with someone whose identity or credentials you cannot confirm.

● Don't buy securities over the phone from people you don't know. Inquire about the company's business history, officers, its earning records, etc.

● When offered unusually high interest rate—a rate higher than a bank will pay—for the use of your money, investigate the financial condition of the company or individual.

● If investing in oil or gas securities, get a geologist report if possible.

● Obtain a copy of the operating agreement between yourself and the promoter or dealer.

● Check references of companies if given and then verify the information.

So-called white collar crime is extremely costly to Michigan citizens. The Bureau is an excellent source of information. People need to realize that in any questionable investment or securities situation they can verify what is legitimate and what may be outside the law by contacting the Bureau at 517-373-0485.

QUESTION: I'm a senior citizen who doesn't file an income tax return. How do I go about filing for my property tax relief rebate?

GOVERNOR: You can obtain a special application from the State Department of Treasury. Since you don't pay state income tax, you can file early—in December. As an eligible claimant, you must report your year's total income and the amount of property tax. For those whose only source of income is Social Security, the year's final income figure can be obtained from the December check.

As a senior citizen, you may be entitled to a rebate of 100 percent of the residential property taxes you pay above a 3.5 percent of household income. If your income is less than $6,000 a year, the 3.5 percent cutoff point is lowered on a sliding scale according to the amount of income.

If you need assistance with the application, you can call the Individual Income Tax Division of the Michigan Department of Treasury at 517-373-2910 and it will refer you to the nearest district office for personal attention. The Michigan Office of Services to the Aging (517-373-8230) also will refer a person to a hometown agency for personal assistance.

The 1973 property tax relief law was intended to reduce the tax burden on people who pay more than a certain percentage of their household income in property taxes (for most people this is 3.5 percent). They receive a rebate of 60 percent of the excess above that figure—up to $1,200.

This program has provided $400 million in relief so far and is expected to provide $215 million or more in the coming year.

QUESTION: As it gets colder and colder, how do I go about taking advantage of the Department of Natural Resources free firewood program?

GOVERNOR: You need to contact the DNR field office closest to you to obtain a permit. The permit outlines what type of wood can be cut and in what area. Most of the material is already dead, trimmed from trees or otherwise specified by the DNR as eligible for the firewood program. You are responsible for providing your own saw and doing your own cutting and hauling.

The DNR offices in Lansing, Cadillac, Roscommon, Mio, Gaylord, Newberry, Escanaba, Marquette and Baraga can provide additional information about the program in those areas.

Goodfellows deserve your full support

WHO CARES WHEN A child goes to bed with an empty stomach?

Who cares when a little boy or girl gets up on Christmas morning and finds nothing but the same daily despair?

Who cares when a struggling mother or father must go without the basic necessities in order to provide a little Christmas joy for their children?

Of course we all do. We care but most of us are just too busy to help. Just providing for our own families is a full-time job and leaves little time for others.

That's understandable. But even so we must remember that we are also part of a larger family—our own community.

WE HAVE a larger responsibility than just seeing to it that our own is taken care of. That responsibility is to give to others not so fortunate, a part of that which we may have in excess.

There are people who really care and exemplify that caring by doing something about it.

We're talking about Goodfellows.

We thank them for standing in the cold offering their canisters to others and hoping some of the caring rubs off.

We thank them for staying at that meeting, even though they may have gotten home late and missed their children's damp good night kisses.

WE THANK them for being some of the busiest people in town, but still having time for one more job.

We thank them for giving others a part of their Christmas.

We thank them for bringing a little cheer into the hearts of others.

We thank them for changing a freckled-face frown into a smile.

We thank them for giving us something that no amount of money on earth could buy—themselves.

But most of all, we thank them for truly being Goodfellows.

This weekend the Romulus and Sumpter Township Goodfellows will take to the streets. We urge your support. They will be trying to bring Christmas to those less fortunate.

Disabled veteran seeks cards

To the editor:
I lived in Inkster for eleven months in 1957. I am a disabled World War II veteran and was wounded three times at the Battle of the Bulge. My wounds required seven operations, and I eventually lost my left leg. Following four more operations I lost my right leg also, to a circulatory problem.

Would you please print this letter in your paper and invite any of your readers to send me cards, letters, or Christmas Cards to cheer me up while I am recuperating from my last operation.

Thank you,

The tumult of the 20th Century has taught us again the ancient lesson that people get the leaders they deserve. A populace can invite tyranny; it can foster mediocre leadership; or it can demand capable leaders. Good constituencies produce good leaders.

Today there is an unfortunate tendency among us to accept mediocre standards of performance from our leaders, and then to be rather contemptuous of them. Both attitudes should be altered. We should set high standards of performance for our leaders and then honor them.

Most great leaders are the product of great emergencies or disasters—which is to say that they are made not born. They appear when a society needs them desperately. Perhaps only under such conditions of extreme need can there be both the mandate and the highly motivated followers that great leadership requires.

No society should expect to have an endless succession of extraordinary leaders. A healthy society—especially one with our tradition of dispersed power—should be able to function well with good rather than great leaders. Indeed, one of the glories of our society is that "the system" is not excessively dependent on The Leader.

Our kind of society doesn't need leaders to tell the people what to do. For us, the task of leaders is to help us understand the problems that all must face and to work with others in finding paths to those goals. It is part of the leaders' task to mobilize support for the goals chosen, maintaining motivation and morale and nurturing a workable level of public utility. Leaders must use existing institutions in pursuit of the society's goals or help redesign the institutions to achieve these goals.

Leaders must also help people know what they can be, at their best—calling forth the kind of effort and restraint, drive and discipline that make for great performance. In leadership at its best, the leader stands as a symbol of the community, its traditions, values and purposes.

In a free society, leaders perform those functions within a framework of constraints—an uncorrupted electoral process, the rule of law, institutional checks and balances, a free press. In Watergate, the nation learned bitter lessons at the hands of a president who undertook to neutralize all of those traditional constraints. We learned how and why the checks on power must be kept in working order. Even our system can't function with fools, rascals or non-leaders in the leadership position. We have tested the proposition.

Centuries ago, a philosopher named Lao-Tze wrote:

"A leader is best
When people barely know that he exists
...Of a good leader, who talks little,
When his work is done, his aim fulfilled,
They will say, We did this ourselves."

Such a self-effacing leader would have trouble getting re-elected against our skillfully self-advertising politicians. Even so, Lao-Tze's words carry wisdom for our society.

Michiganders travel South to escape cold

"Every year hundreds of thousands of Michiganders flee the snow and blustery winds of the North to visit Florida between December and April, and this year should be no different," said Automobile Club of Michigan Touring Manager Joseph Ratke. "Surveys show Michigan ranked third behind New York and Ohio as a state of origin for motorists entering the Sunshine State during the first quarter of 1976," Ratke added. "In 1975's first quarter, Michigan was only fifth."

Ratke noted that 90 percent of Florida-bound vacationers from Michigan make the trip south behind the wheel of the family car. Those Michiganders who make the trip this year will find new entertainment attractions, new hotel and motel accommodations, improved highways and plentiful gasoline along major routes. Disney World, one of the big reasons for central Florida's booming success, recently opened its new "River Country" next to Fort Wilderness Campground. The 6-acre water recreation area features an "old swimming hole," waterfalls, raft rides and picnic areas.

Also new is the $2-million, 5,000-seat Atlantis Theater at Orlando's Sea World. It is perched on the edge of a 17-acre lagoon and is designed for aquatic shows, televised water sports and theatrical productions. The expanded Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey's Circus World near Haines City, about 12 miles west of Disney World, boasts "Participation Circus" for anyone who ever dreamed of performing under the Big Top. Guests can walk the high wire, fly on the trapeze or have their faces painted like clowns.

At West Palm Beach, there is the new Lion Country Safari Amusement Park with 15 rides that is scheduled to open Dec. 15. Another wild attraction will be Hurricane World, about two miles east of Orlando. The $5-million, 20-acre complex is scheduled to open early next year. Highlights include a storm testing facility, a mini-theater for hurricane films and what is billed as the "scariest ride yet designed by man"—an aerial hurricane ride called the "Eye".

Motorists pulling trailers or just pitching tents will find state campgrounds under heavy pressure through mid-January, according to Florida Natural Resources spokesmen. The state has about 2,000 campsites with about half set aside for the "drive-in trade."

Hotel and motel pressure always is heavy in winter but this year Florida has several new hotels and motels and more are scheduled to open next year. Miami's Omni International, set to open in the spring, is a 20-story, 556-room hotel that is part of a $76-million complex featuring an enclosed mall with 140 shops on several levels. It is Miami's first new major hotel in 11 years.

Michigan motorists who spend winter on Florida's sun-drenched beaches will find the Sunshine State's Interstate highway system is about 77 percent complete, with the bulk of the uncompleted mileage the 275 miles of I-75 in southwest Florida.

The I-75 bridge over the Caloosahatchee River, which was started two years ago, is expected to be completed in February. In Southeast Florida, the 78-mile stretch of I-95 between Miami and PGA Boulevard in West Palm Beach also is open.

Southern Michigan motorists should allow at least 2½ days of driving time to reach the Florida state line and 3½ days to go all the way to Miami. From the Kalamazoo area in West Michigan, the drive covers an average of 70 miles more and costs 25 cents more in tolls, but it includes about 71 miles more of 4-lane highway.

Blood donors needed

In between the rush of planning for holiday festivities and getting ready for the New Year, volunteer blood donors in Western Wayne County sometimes forget about the continual need for blood.

According to the Red Cross, whole blood lasts only 21 days and, unfortunately, with the Christmas and New Year travel, accident rates usually soar, thus creating the need for blood.

In order to avoid a slump in blood donations during the holiday season, the Red Cross is urging donors to make an extra effort to give.

Giving blood is a painless procedure, a Red Cross spokesman said. Before giving blood, each donor is screened by a Red Cross nurse, at which time his or her temperature is taken and the blood pressure, pulse and hemoglobin are checked. A series of questions also are asked to outline the donor's medical history.

The actual drawing of blood takes only six to eight minutes. Following the donation, the donor is escorted to a canteen, where orange juice and cookies are served. The entire procedure takes no longer than 45 minutes to one hour.

For donor convenience appointments can be made at:

- The Dearborn Donor Center, Village Plaza, 23400 Michigan Avenue, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Friday, 2 to 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. Call 274-5450 for appointments.
- Livonia Donor Center, 15425 Middle Belt Road, from 2 to 8 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. Call 422-2787 for appointments.

Bill Mosey, Cheryl Maack married at Ensley Center

The newly wed William Alan Moseys traveled throughout the state of Michigan following their Nov. 6 wedding and are now making their home in Grand Rapids.

Cheryl Joy Maack became Mrs. Mosey during a 7 p.m. ceremony at Ensley Baptist Church at Ensley Center near Howard City. The Rev. James Winn presided at the nuptial rite while Ingrid Teachout and Chester Harris provided organ and vocal music, respectively, for the occasion.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon E. Maack of Ensley Center. Mr. and Mrs. Norman W. Mosey of Belleville are parents of the bridegroom.

For her wedding day Cheryl chose to wear a toe-touching gown of sateau and venise lace. Styled in the empire mode, the bodice featured bishop sleeves ruffled at the cuffs and an oval neckline enhanced with lace. The A-line skirt, frosted with lace appliques, drifted into a lace-edged chapel train.

Her elbow-length silk illusion veil was caught to a crescent cap of matching lace with a petite bouquet of yellow and white pom poms, baby's breath and lace streamers completing her bridal finery.

Paula Hawkins of Grand Rapids was asked to be maid of honor and Samuel Brown of Belleville served as best man.

Bridal attendants were Debra Grandmason, Lisa Bos and Mary Debor, all of Grand Rapids. All four donned pale green gowns accented with dark green velvet vests and each carried a bouquet of autumn-colored flowers tied with yellow streamers.

The bridegroom's niece, Joy Marie Spickenagel of Ypsilanti, filled the role of flowergirl in a frock identical to the senior attendants'.

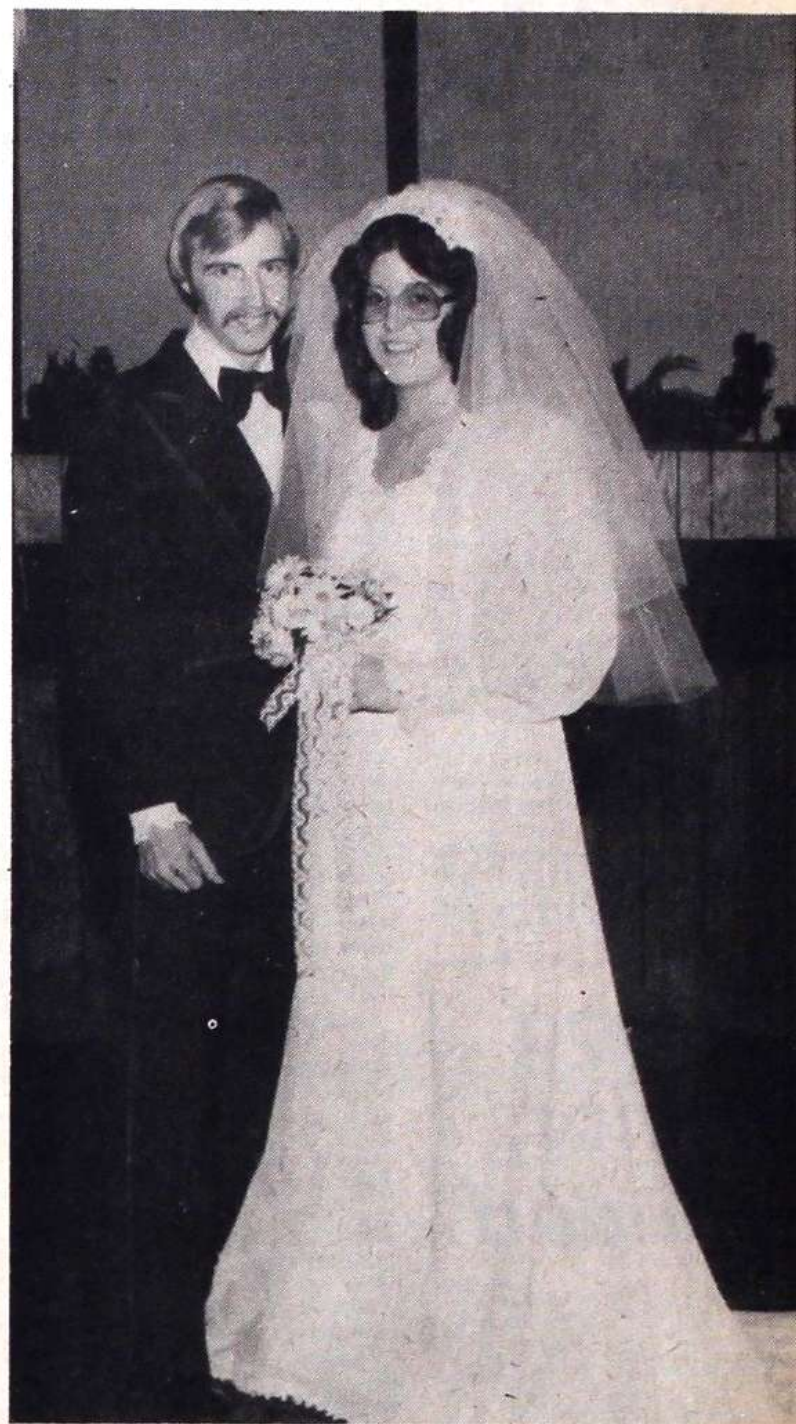

Ringbearer was Troy Kuleck of Grand Rapids, a nephew of the bride.

Robert Grandmason and Dave Derst of Grand Rapids and Gary Mosey of Belleville were groomsmen with James Riechlin and Dan Kitchen serving as ushers.

At the reception which followed in the church annex, the bride's mother greeted guests in a formal length blue and green print gown. Mrs. Mosey, the bridegroom's mother, donned a pale blue formal ensemble.

The new Mrs. Mosey, who is employed as a hair stylist, graduated from Grant High School and the Fremont Vocational Center where she studied cosmetology. She also attended Grand Rapids Baptist College for one year.

Her husband works as a manager of a formal wear store. A graduate of Belleville High School, he attended Washtenaw Community College and Grand Rapids Baptist College.

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council has two new troop services directors

MRS. STAFFORD

MRS. LAMBLY

Two area women have been appointed to volunteer supervisory positions with the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, it was announced by Council President Mrs. Frances Bauer of Plymouth.

Appointed as troop services directors are Mrs. Joyce Lambly of 23145 Merriman, New Boston, and Mrs. Charlotte Stafford of 29746 Red Cedar, Flat Rock.

As troop services directors they are responsible for recruiting troop leaders, training them, providing program ideas and researching community services opportunities for troops.

Mrs. Lambly is in charge of 10 Huron Township troops meeting at Riverside and Miller Schools, St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Chateau Estates. Mrs. Lambly has a broad spectrum of scouting experience ranging from being a girl member for three years in Detroit to acting as troop leader of Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors and working as troop services director in a previous appointment. Mrs. Lambly is also busy in other volunteer work. She is currently president of the Huron Health Committee and is a past president of the VFW Auxiliary.

Mrs. Stafford also has 10 troops in her "cluster" which meet at Simpson Junior High, Evergreen and Barnes Schools in Flat Rock. She was a Junior troop leader for the past two years until accepting this appointment. Mrs. Stafford previously was active in the National Campers and Hikers Association where she held the office of secretary. She is a member of the Fraternal Order of the Moose in Wyandotte.

"These ladies' special skills are a valuable contribution to our Council, and we are fortunate to have persons of this capacity involved in the Girl Scout movement", Mrs. Bauer stated.

Spot bad situations

Anxiety — what to do about it

Everybody experiences anxiety, according to the National Association for Mental Health. Few people are fully aware of what unrelieved anxiety does to people, and what can be done about the pain caused by constant uneasiness of mind.

Highway accidents, job failures, family spats and even physical ailments have been attributed to excessive tensions and worry. Dr. Oswald Hoffmann of radio's Lutheran Hour says, "There are good reasons for calling this the Age of Anxiety. In spite of steadily improving standards of living in many parts of the world; in spite of increased knowledge of mental difficulties and improved methods for treating them; yes, in spite of widespread religious revival, anxiety has strengthened its grip upon millions of people."

Experts who have dealt with all kinds of mental and emotional problems point out that not all anxiety is bad. Nor is rest always the best cure.

Anxiety is often like the pain which alerts the senses and causes a woman to withdraw her finger quickly from an iron still too hot to handle. Tension can be a self-protective reaction when we are faced by threats to our safety — like illness, violence, financial trouble, job difficulties and family problems.

Sitting down and brooding are not usually the best ways to overcome tension and anxiety. Whacking a little white pellet around the golf course or beating a rug hung over a clothesline, pruning the shrubs or cutting the grass may be far better than following the well-intended advice of friends to relax and don't worry.

Professional advice may be in order in some instances, especially if anxieties build up constantly to the point where they take charge instead of submitting to control by the ordinary means available to almost everyone.

If your tensions are not severe enough for professional attention, there are some things you can do.

First of all, spot the situations that regularly produce tension. If it's a job you know must be done, either get at it without worrying about your performance or whether you will do as well as someone else, or get somebody who can help you do it better than you could all by yourself.

If playing bridge or the gossip that often passes over the bridge table unnerves you and leaves you tense for days afterward, forget about the bridge club. There are other ways for you to pass the time to better advantage.

Take a good look at yourself. Don't shoot for the moon, if you want to avoid anxiety. Some people expect too much from themselves, and get into a constant state of worry and anxiety because they think they are not achieving as much as they should. An impossible ideal of perfection is an open invitation to failure and to the build-up of anxiety. One of the first steps to overcoming feelings of anxiety is to quit trying to play Superman.

A regular physical check-up may be important for you. Poor eyesight or some other physical disability could be an undiscovered cause of your anxiety. Half of America's 4,000,000 diabetics do not know that they have this disease. It's better to recognize your disabilities, whatever they are, than to fight them in the dark without knowing what they are!

Talk out your troubles. It often helps to get your worries "off your chest" when you can confide them to another person in whom you have confidence: a sympathetic friend, an understanding member of your family or the pastor of your church.

Dr. Hoffman, in pointing out that anxiety takes other troubles and often makes them appear mountains says, "Anxiety can inflate ordinary problems, blowing them up to giant size. Under the influence of anxiety, people easily get the idea that trouble will not stop until it has ruined them."

What possible good can come out of trouble? It can help to make you a more mature man or woman when you learn how to deal with the anxieties which arise quite normally under the circumstances. "Trouble is an invitation to leave the worrying to God," says Dr. Hoffman. "Anxiety will never make you one inch taller, but dependence upon God can make you 10 feet tall."

Don't be worried over the fact that you have worries. Everyone has them. Don't play the hero by sticking it out and suffering with your anxieties. Take a trip or engage in some activity that enlists your interest and energy — to get yourself out of the rut and clear your mind that you may cope with pressures lying ahead. But do all with faith in God, whose love and care are sure: "Cast all your anxiety on Him; He cares about you."

Should Children Attend funerals? Harold Rediske
As members of a home in mourning, children must be allowed to express their own grief just as fully as adult members. We violate their rights if we forbid them this natural, emotional outlet. Mourning is a part of growing-up, of maturing. To deny the child this emotional experience is to stifle his natural development.
Generally, a child can deal with a loss far better than one might expect. After giving full vent to his feelings, a child can become a bit more mature. He has seen, grieved, and recovered. A child's emotional resiliency is remarkable. With adequate preparation, a child may be permitted to attend the funeral, and be all the better for it. The child, as a family member, shares the grief, feels the loss. He or she gives support and receives it in return from his family at the time of mourning.
The child sees and feels with all those who are around him. He has a sense of belonging which only the common bond of grieving together can provide. But the child must be told what to expect at the funeral. The child who understands what he is soon to experience is that much more likely to be at ease, or at least, somewhat less disturbed.
Under no circumstances should a child be forced to attend the funeral. In fact, if you can anticipate that the child might be given to hysterical outbursts, it might be good judgment to keep the overly-sensitive child at home. After the funeral, the child might be asked to join with the family and share their grief, thus enabling him to express his own feelings.

Joy makes fifth generation

Tiny Joy Marie Kauch was 1-month-old and the "star" of the day when this family portrait depicting five generations was taken on her christening day. She is held by her great-great grandmother, Mrs. Sophie Krajewski, who marked her 90th birthday on Aug. 12. A former resident of both Fret Road and Second Street in Belleville for 32 years, she now lives with her daughter in Wayne. She is seated next to her daughter and the infant's great-grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Seroczynski, 73, of Detroit. Fergusons mark 41st anniversary

The holiday week was a busy time for Fay and Mary Ferguson of Judd Road since they not only marked Thanksgiving on Thursday but their 41st wedding anniversary two days later, on Nov. 27.

For the special occasion they were invited to the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Roger and Diane Ferguson on Harris Road, for a family dinner party. Sharing in their grandparents' celebration were Leslie, Shawn and Shari Ferguson as well as Richard and Lennie Ferguson and daughters, Sandi and Terri, of Plymouth; Bob Ferguson and children, Donna and Mike, of Belleville, and Jim and Marie Doser and son, Stephen, of Dexter.

Also invited were Fay and Mary's good friends, Art and Verdys Shephard of Belleville.

Quickie supper

For a quick and hearty supper dish, brown frozen shredded hash browns as package says and serve them topped with creamed chipped beef laced with crunchy water chestnuts.

Garnishes add class to turkey

With turkey in plentiful supply and with the bird such a favorite at holiday time, the garnish glamorizes it and makes it into a gourmet treat no matter what form it is served. Here are a few ideas: Start with a fringe of parsley or a ruffle of salad greens around the bird.

Cut a lemon in wedges and slice an orange. Alternately place wedges and slices around the turkey on top of fresh greens.

Cook and drain mixed dried fruit. Circle turkey with light and dark fruit and drop in a few red cherries for extra color.

Group quarter slices of orange in petal fashion around halves of crab apples, one for each serving.

Cut pineapple slices once, so you can spread slices on a diagonal line around crab apples, one for each serving. Pickle hold slices vertical. Use whole, canned or pickled apricots in place of crab apples.

Circle the turkey with halves of canned, drained peaches with a cooked prune in the center of each peach half.

Place canned, drained halves of peaches, pears or apricots or a combination of all three, around the turkey and put a spoonful of cranberry or red current jelly or orange marmalade in the center of each fruit half.

Traditional 'wigilia'

PNA planning Polish dinner

The Polish custom traditional of the Wigilia Dinner will be a part of the 1976 Christmas season when the Polish Farmers Society Lodge 2984

PNA stage such a meal on Dec. 18. Beginning at 7 p.m., dinner participants will share the oplatek and the traditional 7-course meal.

The Galicja Song and Dance Ensemble of Detroit will be the guest performers for the evening.

Tickets for the event cost $5 for adults and $3 for children 12 years and under. A limited number of tickets will be sold, and none will be available at the door.

The highlight of the Christmas season for Poles begins with the vigil of Christmas. At the appearance of the first star, the family commences its traditional "Wigilia" or Christmas Eve supper.

It is customary to spread hay beneath the tablecloth, representing the stable of Bethlehem.

Supper begins with the breaking and sharing of the oplatek, a white rectangular wafer made of flour and water, which is exchanged with one another along with good wishes for the holiday season, the coming year and years to come.

That is followed by an odd number of meatless dishes which are served in courses, and during and after the meal Polish Christmas carols are sung until time for midnight Mass.

Decorating the walls and ceilings of homes during the Christmas season are Polish Wycinanki, colorful paper cutouts.

For further information about the Wigilia Dinner and tickets, contact Richard Korgal at 697-0879.

For most Americans

Hot brew? It's coffee all the way

Ask any Western Wayne County resident what their favorite hot beverage is, and most will answer coffee. Whether black, with sugar or cream or both, coffee by far is the brew most consumed here and throughout the United States.

And it might seem to non-coffee drinkers that soaring coffee prices would slow down coffee consumption. But Americans are true to their favorite brew. In fact, the most recent menu census says that 20 percent of all Americans start the day with only a cup of coffee. The average breakfast for American adults who bother to eat anything at all in the morning is just some buttered toast and a cup of coffee.

There may not be an awful lot of coffee in Brazil these days; a major freeze has cut the crop, so here are some things coffee drinkers should know to combat the ever rising price of their favorite brew.

Those giant vacuum packed cans of ground coffee that look like such bargains on your supermarket shelf may not turn out to be the bargains they seem unless you're providing coffee for an army. Once the vacuum seal on the can is broken, the quality and flavor of coffee begin to deteriorate. Ground coffee is at its best for only four to five days after the vacuum seal is broken. After a week, it's well past its prime.

If you're a small coffee drinking family, live alone or have a connoisseur's palate — or any combination of these — fresh roasted coffee beans you grind yourself will do you better. Coffee remains at its peak of flavor for three weeks after it's roasted, and it can be stored in your home freezer for even longer periods of time, say the folks from Brazil who supply coffee beans to distributors, as large as the huge supermarket chains and as small as your local gourmet food market.

"Never store coffee beans in the bag from the store," one director of sales said. "For one thing, they're great absorbers of refrigerator smells. For another, they'll pick up the moisture of your refrigerator or freezer, and you'll have a less than satisfying blend in a soggy paper bag."

He advises that coffee beans are best stored in an air-tight container, either in your refrigerator or your freezer. Coffee beans will remain at their peak of freshness stored this way for between three and four months.

When you're brewing coffee, always remember that directions on the package are for 6 oz. cups. Usually, two level tablespoons of coffee should be used for each cup of coffee you're brewing. Check the container your coffee came in to be sure.

Start with coffee that's ground to the proper consistency for the method you're using. Whether it's percolator, electric drip, vacuum or filter, does make a difference. Always start your brew with cold water fresh from the tap. Be sure the coffee you're using — whether it's in the bean or already ground — is fresh. Check the date on the package to determine how fresh your coffee really is. Measure carefully. Brew according to the directions for your coffee pot. And drink hearty.

Clint Kessler has a sister, Amanda

Their second child, a daughter, was added to the family of John and Carol Kessler of 14354 Hannan Rd., Romulus, on Nov. 22. Born at 11:01 p.m. at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, the infant was named Amanda Genevieve.

The 8 lb., 13 1/2 oz. baby is the new sister of 2-year-old Clint. Ian Kessler and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton McNett and Mrs. Martha Kessler, all of Romulus.

While experiencing the joy of a new life, the Kesslers were simultaneously suffering the loss of his father, Ed Kessler of Romulus, who passed away that same day.

Home baked gifts

Coconut-capped moist bar cookies are messengers of friendship at holiday time. Layered Coconut Dream Squares are easy to make and remain moist with tender flakes of coconut. There couldn't be a nicer way to show a friend you care than to send her something homemade from your kitchen. (Photo courtesy Baker's Coconut.)

For your recipe file

Bake greetings of friendship

During the course of a year so many wonderful people come into our lives, many of them remaining as friends and not just acquaintances. So, it's only natural to think of these special people during the holidays; remembering them with something special we've really thought about and invested time in.

While it may be easier to select a holiday gift in a local store, it's more meaningful—economical, too—to prepare a delicious greeting. Gifts of cookies, candies and preserves are perfect candidates for a token of friendship.

Set the action scene in your kitchen and select a recipe that will guarantee raves. Be sure the treat is packable. Coconut Dream Squares, for example, are easy to make and remain moist because tender flakes of coconut are combined with brown sugar, butter, walnuts and a few other ingredients. They're pretty, too, with a layering effect that makes them festive enough for party serving.

There are plenty of imaginative gift boxes in your home right now. Just look around. Empty coffee cans can be decorated with adhesive-backed paper in colorful design; empty cardboard boxes are ideal for covering with fabric. Or, store the coconut gift treats in a metal container which your friend can use later. Remember to put a layer of crumpled paper inside the tin or box as a cushion for your coconut creations.

Coconut Dream Squares

- 1 cup unsifted flour
- 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- One third cup soft butter or margarine
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup unsifted flour
- 1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 and one-third cups (about) flaked coconut
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

Combine 1 cup flour and 1/4 cup brown sugar. Add butter and mix until thoroughly blended. Press firmly into an ungreased 9-inch square pan and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, beat eggs until light. Add 1 cup brown sugar gradually, beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Mix 1/4 cup flour with the baking powder; fold into egg mixture. Mix in vanilla, coconut, and nuts. Spread over baked mixture in pan, return to oven and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer or until lightly browned. Cool. Cut in squares. Makes about 2 dozen.

Frozen baked goods a boon

All manner of baked goods can be frozen successfully and some are even improved by freezing. Yeast rolls and breads tend to taste fresher, for example, while fruit cakes are more mellow and easier to slice.

Cakes, cookies, yeast breads and quick breads may be stored longer if they are baked before freezing.

Fruit pies, on the other hand, keep longer if frozen unbaked. For specifics, check the storage time chart found in most freezing manuals.

Virtually any kind of pie, except custard, can be frozen successfully. However, meringue and whipped cream toppings should be omitted. Add these at serving time.

Leftover rice can be versatile food

Leftover rice that has been cooked can be used in most combination dishes that call for cooked rice. To reheat, steam rice in a colander or seive over boiling water. Or add two tablespoons of water for each cup of cooked rice and reheat in a covered pan over low heat or in the oven. While rice is heating, occasionally stir it gently with a fork.

For a change, cook rice in a flavorful liquid instead of water. Try chicken or beef broth, fruit juice or equal parts of tomato juice and water. Add 1/4 to 1 teaspoon of curry powder, cumin, thyme, turmeric or mace to each cup of water. With dried parsley flakes, use one tablespoon and with saffron, use only one-third teaspoon.

Michiganders travel to warmer regions

Florida can choose from four principal highway routes. They are labeled A, B, C and D on Auto Club's accompanying map.

The most direct route for East Michigan tourists is Route A via I-75. Its 1,410 miles include 1,406 miles of 4-lane highway and tolls for the entire trip to Miami cost $5.20. Route A goes through Cincinnati, Lexington, Knoxville and Chattanooga but skirts Atlanta via a bypass. There is semi-mountainous terrain on only about 50 miles of the trip in Kentucky and Tennessee.

The most direct route for West Michigan motorists is Route B. From western and central Michigan, it is reached via Fort Wayne and Indianapolis. East Michigan travelers go by way of Toledo, Cincinnati and Louisville. All but six of the 1,465-mile length is 4-lane highway.

Alternate Route B-1, which includes route B to Nashville, is 1,518 miles long and has less freeway than Route B. Its main advantage is as an alternate to Route B in case of bad weather around Chattanooga and Atlanta. Tolls for both Route B and B-1 are $5.20. Although Route B is 55 miles longer than Route A from the Detroit area, driving time is about the same because there are practically no mountain roads.

Some 1,200 of Route C's 1,690 miles

COMPARISON OF ROUTES - DETROIT TO MIAMI - 1977*

ROUTE	MILEAGE	4-lane highway	TOLL
A	1410	1404	5.20
B	1465	1459	5.20
C	1592	1422	9.90
D	1401	1172	6.80
E	1601	1569	10.30

*Motorists headed for Miami from Kalamazoo will travel an average 70 more miles and pay 25 cents more in tolls, but they will find an average 71 more miles of four-lane highway than motorists traveling the same routes from Detroit.

are 4-lane highway, but winter road conditions could cause problems in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Although not the fastest route to Florida, Route C offers a variety of scenic and historic sights in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley and the central Carolinas. Tolls are $10.15.

Route D's 1,487-mile path to Florida should be avoided in winter because of the snow and ice conditions in mountainous West Virginia and North Carolina. However, from spring through fall, there are views of mountain scenery, and 4-lane highways comprise 1,258 miles of the route. Tolls total $6.80.

The Auto Club advises motorists planning a trip south that parts of Ohio and Kentucky and all of Maryland and Virginia are included on the list of states that strictly enforce motor vehicle laws, particularly those pertaining to speed.

For cross-country enthusiasts

Metroparks offer ski trails

Cross-country skiing is available at several Huron-Clinton metroparks, which serve residents in Wayne, Livingston, Macomb, Oakland and Washtenaw counties, during the 1976-77 winter season.

The new winter sport is growing in popularity at Metro Beach Metropark near Mt. Clemens, Stony Creek Metropark near Rochester-Utica, Kensington Metropark near Milford, Hudson Mills Metropark northwest of Ann Arbor, Lower Huron Metropark near Belleville, Willow Metropark between New Boston and Flat Rock and Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock.

The cross-country ski trails are free at the metroparks, and there are no vehicle entry charges during the winter months at the metroparks.

In addition cross-country ski rental services are available at Kensington and Stony Creek parks. Equipment that can be rented includes skis, poles, boots and bindings for use on special beginner's trails or advanced cross country trails throughout Kensington Metropark and on scenic trails for beginners and advanced trails throughout Stony Creek Metropark.

At the former recreational site rentals run $4.50 for a complete set for a half day. Skis for a half day cost $2 and boots only for that same period of time rent for $1.50 and $1 for poles. There is an insurance fee of $2 and damage deposit of $15.

The park's Ski Touring Center, located at the Golf Course Starter Building, is open from 9 a.m. to sunset daily through mid-March 1977.

At Stony Creek Metropark the rental fees are the same, with the park's Ski Touring Center located at the Eastwood Beach site.

Both Parks offer also skiing lessons from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday for a cost of $3 per hour.

On the college scene

2 residents net degrees

On the college scene, Belleville residents Michael G. Aimone and Christopher Stinehour have been awarded their bachelor of science degrees from Michigan Technological University.

Aimone, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Aimone of 13882 Lenmoore, earned his bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering, while Stinehour, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Stinehour of 407 E. Huron River Drive, earned his bachelor of science degree in forestry.

Mary E. Spencer of 45281 Harmony, Belleville, was to have received her degree from Michigan

State University this past weekend. Miss Spencer was to have received her master of arts degree in audiology and speech sciences.

At Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) Wilfred D. MacDonnell, a 1934 graduate and chairman and chief executive officer of the Kelsey-Hayes Co. of Romulus, netted that university's Corporate Leadership Award. The awards were set up to recognize the "extraordinary" achievements of MIT alumni as leaders of business and industry.

And William Van Seyoc of 15500 Inkster Road, Romulus, had the highest score of 289 points out of a possible 400 for new shooters to the Western Michigan University ROTC rifle team in a recent weekend match with the Central Michigan University ROTC rifle team.

Van Seyoc, an aviation technology and management major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Van Seyoc.

Communities acquire emergency aid units

Officials from Belleville, Wayne and Van Buren and Sumpter townships have taken delivery of their new $10,000 mobile first aid stations from the Wayne County Office of Civil Defense, without spending a dime.

The early Christmas gift was the result of a cooperative effort by Wayne County Commissioner Royce E. Smith (D-Belleville) and George Young, county Civil Defense director.

The first aid stations were part of four complete mobile hospitals, valued at $300,000, which have been maintained by the county Civil Defense office for the past four years.

"The emergency hospital units had been stored by the defense office, located in Westland," Smith explained. "We wanted to decentralize this equipment to strengthen local disaster preparedness."

"Last winter, we had tornado and ice storm problems in the Grosse Pointes and other communities, that created havoc and forced large numbers of people to seek shelter and medical treatment. This could happen anywhere."

"By giving these emergency aid units to the local communities, we are making help more readily available to people who might need it quickly and would feel more comfortable receiving care in their own neighborhood."

Each unit contains supplies for 20 patients including cots, blankets, pillows, crutches, medical supplies, litters, bandages and other equipment. Emergency building items such as nails and tools also are included.

According to Civil Defense Director George Young, the county divided the original hospital units into 40 separate first aid stations which are being offered free to suburban communities in the county.

"The decision to break up the four completely-equipped disaster hospitals into smaller packages was made by our office in consultation with the Board of Commissioners and the Michigan Office of Civil Defense," Young said.

In case of emergencies

Belleville and Sumpter Township officials accepted $10,000 mobile first aid stations for their communities from the Wayne County Office of Civil Defense. The county had four completely-equipped disaster hospitals and decided to break up the supplies into smaller units and give them to local communities for use in emergency situations. Wayne County Commissioner Royce E. Smith

Screening planned

Senior citizens in the out-county area will have an opportunity to take advantage of a special health screening project conducted by the Wayne County Department of Health and supported by a contract with the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging.

Any person 60 years of age and older will be able to participate in the screening program, to be held at the Senior Citizen Center of J Building in the Wayne County General Hospital-Eloise complex. Appointments can be made from Monday through Dec. 22.

A health team, consisting of a physician, social worker and registered nurse, will provide a wide range of screening services to include a health history, height and weight measurement, blood pressure, temperature, pulse, respiration, pap smear, glaucoma, hearing and vision testing. Minor laboratory tests also will be done.

Persons interested in the screening program can contact the health department at 274.2800, or 729-2211, ext. 251, for an appointment.

Be alert to winter dangers

Know conditions for sports

Ice fishing and skating are just a few of the winter sports enthusiasts will be taking to the ice for, but these same people should be alert to the dangers of such sports.

Knowing where and under what conditions to participate in outdoor snow and ice sports can prevent many of the accidents and tragedies that occur during the winter, a spokesman for the Red Cross said.

The organization has safety rules to make winter ice sports fun and safe:

- Always check conditions before venturing out on the ice. Whenever possible use ice at supervised areas such as those operated by park systems. Shallow water areas such as ponds and small lakes are best for skating. Ideally, the water should be more than waist deep.

- Use the buddy system and skate close to shore, but never at night. Avoid gathering in large groups. Ice fishermen likewise should spread out.
- Always warn other skaters of dangerous ice conditions and areas where they exist when you know of them.
- Four or more inches of ice is safe for skating and hockey, but snowmobiling, ice boating and similar activities require seven or eight inches because of extra weight.

Hazardous ice conditions include ice that has been subject to periodic thawing and refreezing. The ice often is decayed and weakened. This is especially true in late winter and early spring.

Equally as dangerous is the early winter period when the ice first freezes. The ice often is deceptively thin and likely to be weaker toward the center of the lake or pond. New ice is not really safe until it has frozen at least three to four inches thick and even then skaters should stay reasonably close to shore.

And in case of accidents on ice simple rescue equipment includes a length of rope, pole, ladder or plank. Such materials should be kept handy at skating areas.

Rescuers also can improvise with a tree limb, spare tire or sturdy article of clothing.

According to the Red Cross, the safest way to rescue someone who has fallen through the ice is to lie flat on the ice, edge forward and extend the rescue equipment toward the victim.

When the victim has grasped it securely, pull him or her safely to the shore. Never stand on the ice while attempting to rescue someone.

When no rescue equipment is available, several persons, depending on ice conditions and how far the victim is from shore, can form a human chain by lying flat on the ice, holding the ankles of skates of the person in front of them. The "chain" edges its way to the victim, and the lead man grasps the victim's wrists, with the entire line wriggling back to safety.

If you are alone and fall through the ice, don't try to climb out, the Red Cross advises. Instead, extend both arms along the ice surface and kick vigorously, pushing your body forward and flat onto the ice at the edge of the hole, then roll to safety.

If you have knife or other sharp object, dig it into the ice to get a grip on the slippery surface and pull yourself onto solid ice.

And follow these tips after rescue:

- If the victim is not breathing, give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation immediately and first aid for exposure to the cold.
- Get the victim to warm shelter as quickly as possible.
- Remove wet or frozen clothing.
- Rewarm the victim by wrapping him in blankets, or by placing him in a tub of warm, not hot, water.
- If the victim is conscious, give him hot liquids to drink, but not alcoholic beverages.

Make fireplace a colorful sight for Yule

Give this novel gift

Here's a novel gift idea for the firebugs in your life: pine cones, kindling, or newspaper logs treated with chemicals to add colors to the fireplace.

Michigan State University Extension forester Randy

Heiligmann said solutions of the following chemicals may be used to produce these colors: copper sulfate color flames green; calcium chloride, orange; copper chloride, blue; lithium chloride, red; sodium chloride, yellow) and potassium chloride, purple.

Chemical supply companies, agricultural chemical outlets, hardware stores and drug stores are likely sources of these chemicals, he added and because of the high purity of the chemicals they handle, drug stores are likely to be the most expensive places to buy them.

To make a solution for soaking pine cones, newspaper logs, kindling or other materials, dissolve one pound of the desired chemical in one gallon of water. Use only one chemical in each batch of solution.

"An old paint can or ceramic crock is a good container to mix and treat in," Heiligmann said. "Don't use a good metal container unless you want to see it ruined. These chemicals are corrosive. For this reason, wear rubber gloves to protect your hands."

After the chemical is dissolved, soak the materials to be treated for a day or two. Up to a point, the longer the material soaks, the more intense and long-lasting the color will be. experiment to see how long it takes to produce the intensity of color you want.

Dry the materials on newspapers. Store in mesh onion bags or nylon net dyed with food coloring the same color the materials will produce when they are burned. You also can dye the cones or other materials by dipping them briefly in water containing food coloring.

"Remember when working with and disposing of these chemicals that they are corrosive," Heiligmann cautioned. "Work where spills will not harm anything valuable. And keep both dry chemicals and solutions labeled and locked up out of the reach of children and pets."

Kissing under mistletoe has its origins in legend

The custom of kissing under the mistletoe came to this country with the English colonists who settled in the South. But horticulturists point out that the origin of the custom goes back much farther than Merrie Olde England.

According to Norse legend, the mother of Balder, the sun god, persuaded every living thing but one — the mistletoe — to promise not to harm him. Balder's fellow gods shot him with an arrow of mistletoe wood. His mother's love brought him back from the dead. Her tears of joy turned to mistletoe berries, and she kissed everyone who passed beneath the mistletoe.

Another legend has mistletoe growing on the sacred oak of the Druids, the Celtic priests of ancient Gaul and Britain. The Druids cut pieces of mistletoe at certain times of the year for their followers to wear as charms or hang over their doorways to keep evil spirits away.

A friend entering beneath the mistletoe received a kiss from the host to seal their friendship.

The ancient Romans saw the mistletoe as a symbol of hope and peace. Enemies meeting under it would lay aside their weapons, kiss each other and declare a truce.

Some early Christians, on the other hand, thought the mistletoe was the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden or the source of the wood for Christ's cross.

In Olde England, the girl who was not kissed under the mistletoe was supposedly doomed to be an old maid for another year.

In addition to its value as a good luck charm, the mistletoe also was prized by various peoples for its medicinal value. Infertility, epilepsy and toothache are some of the ailments it supposedly cured.

American mistletoe grows wild in southern states. It is a parasite of oak, cottonwood, alder and some conifers. It attaches itself to the water-conducting system of the host plant. Birds spread mistletoe seeds by wiping the sticky fruit from their beaks onto branches and trees. The hard-coated seeds stick there until they germinate.

Home & Garden

Be careful in decorating with evergreen boughs

Decorating inside the home with evergreen boughs is a holiday tradition for many families. For safe use of holiday greenery, follow these tips from specialists:

— Use freshly cut evergreens whenever possible. Except for pines, which should be pruned in early summer, most landscape evergreens can be pruned now to yield boughs for decorating. Use sharp tools and proper pruning techniques.

— Store cut greens in water in a cool place until you're ready to use them.

— Warm temperatures and low humidity in the home cause even fresh greens to dry out quickly. Whenever possible, design arrangements so that the greens can be kept in water.

— Keep greens away from any source of heat, such as heat vents, radiators, fireplaces or stoves, or appliances that give off heat.

— Keep greens away from open flames. Sparks from a fireplace or a candle can ignite even fresh greens in a moment.

— Greens, like Christmas trees, may be treated with fire retardant chemicals. Such materials will not prevent fire — they only slow its spread. Greens kept indoors get so dry in a few days that fire retardant chemicals have little or no effect. Careful use of greens to minimize the hazard of fire is the best defense against it.

This begonia isn't for plant beginners

The Iron Cross Begonia (Begonia masoniana) is not for beginners.

According to horticulturists at Michigan State University, the life expectancy of this plant in the average home is only one to three months. It requires a combination of environmental conditions that most homes just don't provide.

The first requirement is good drainage. The plant is very susceptible to root rot caused by waterlogged soil.

The soil should be high in organic matter. A mixture of equal parts loam, sand, peat and leaf mold is recommended. It should not be allowed to dry out or be watered so much that it always is soaking wet. Fertilize at half the recommended rate once a month.

"Just enough" light is bright light but no direct sun, except in winter. Too much light will cause the leaf tips to get brown and fry. Too little light will make the leaf stems grow long and leggy. Fluorescent light is a good alternative to natural light.

The Iron Cross Begonia requires high humidity — 50 percent or higher — but you must keep water off the foliage to prevent mildew.

Mildew is a problem, because, along with the high humidity, this plant must have warm temperatures. During the day, 80 to 85 degrees F is ideal. The minimum night temperature should be between 62 and 65 degrees.

If, in spite of all these cautions, you decide that the begonia with the Maltese cross on the leaves is for you, plant it in a shallow container, the experts advise. It has a shallow root system.

Propagation is by leaf cuttings. Remove a leaf, make a cut across the main rib on the underside and pin the leaf to a pot of damp sand. Roots will form at the cut.

Doctor warns skiers

Beware of snow blindness

One of the most serious threats to weekend or vacationing Western Wayne County skiers is snow blindness, but it can be prevented, according to the Michigan Optometric Association.

Although usually temporary, snow blindness can impair vision sufficiently to cause accidents, particularly driving accidents, and in some cases can result in permanent eye damage, said Dr. Philip E. Irion, the association's president. Skiers however can prevent it, by wearing proper sunglasses or tinted goggles.

"Snow blindness is the bleaching out of the eye's retina to the point where the eye cannot adapt normally to indoor and night lighting levels," Dr. Irion said. "It is caused by exposure for a few hours to glare created when the sun hits the snow."

He went on to say that it could be compared to the effect on the eyes of viewing a flashbulb popping. With snow blindness, the impaired vision lasts longer because it takes much more time for the eye to recover from the bright glare.

There are different types of sunglass lenses skiers can choose to prevent snow blindness. These are available in ready-made ski goggles, as well as in the special goggles available for skiers wearing prescription lenses.

Those who spend most of their time on the slopes — such as ski instructors — will want a tinted, impact-resistant glass lens that screens out both ultra-violet and infra-red rays. Not all glass lenses does that so it pays to ask before purchasing the lenses, Dr. Irion said.

Most weekend or vacationing skiers, however, will be adequately protected by quality plastic or glass tinted lenses that do not screen out infra-red rays. Plastic lenses are lighter and more impact-resistant than glass, a plus for skiers who have a tendency to fall on the slopes or to tangle with brush and trees. Most ready-made ski goggles have plastic lenses.

The best color for tinted lenses is medium or dark gray, because it does not interfere with color perception, Dr. Irion added. Medium or dark shades of green are satisfactory, but they do distort color perception somewhat.

He cautioned skiers to be certain their sunglass lenses are dark enough to screen out about 75 to 90 percent of available sunlight. Many expert skiers find it necessary to change density of color while skiing in order to combat changing light conditions. For this reason, pros often carry several pairs of goggles with different tints or goggles with interchangeable filters to enable them to read the terrain accurately and to compensate for flat light conditions. For the latter, yellow-tinted lenses may heighten contrast, Dr. Irion said.

Coated sunglass lenses that have a mirrored look are designed primarily for wear under intense glare situations and are a good choice for skiers, Dr. Irion advised. And another lens effective against glare is the polarizing lens, although the tilting of the head can reduce its effectiveness.

Some skiers may find the photochromic or sun-sensitive sunglass lenses — which can change density, going from light to dark and vice versa — adequate on the slopes. This sunglass lens screens out about 80 percent of the light at maximum, however, Dr. Irion cautioned that cold temperatures do slow down the darkening process. In addition, the lenses need a "breaking-in" period and must be subjected to a number of lightening-darkening cycles before maximum change can be achieved with relative ease.

Dr. Irion cautioned that in selecting ski goggles skiers should be aware that curved or bubble-shaped goggles can distort vision. Also, they should be certain the frames do not block side vision.

Helping the needy

Belleville Cup Pack 821 was active helping needy families during Thanksgiving holidays by packing food boxes and handing them out. Why not cut your Yule tree?

Sounds and sights of Christmas can include the rasp of hand saws amidst rows of snow-dusted evergreens for families which enjoy cutting their own Christmas trees, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"People are learning that the holidays not only mean gifts, good meals and football games," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. "It's also a time for doing things together, like cutting your own Christmas trees."

Most of the 82 choose-and-cut tree farms on Auto Club's guide are geared to family involvement. Wagon or sleigh rides, snacks, Yule fires, free treats for children and visits by Santa Claus on weekends are offered by many.

"One farm even sells Early American-style Christmas toys, while another lists entertainment on weekends," Ratke added.

Michigan's farms sell several types of trees priced from $1 for Scotch pines to $20 for blue spruce, and up to $35 for flocked (painted) trees.

Eleven sell by the foot, varying from 75 cents to $2 for trees 4 feet and higher.

Several farms offer trees from 8 to 30 feet tall for churches, businesses and other groups.

Trees are machine-cleaned of dead needles and snow at seven farms and tree wrapping—binding branches tightly for easy cartop transport—is offered at 31 operations. Most farms have pre-cut trees as well.

"In addition, some offer 'living' Christmas trees. Evergreens can be dug up, potted for Christmas display inside and planted outside later," Ratke said.

If planning to cut your own tree this Christmas, Auto Club offers these recommendations:

— Bring a hand saw, if going on a weekend, to avoid any delays. Although 73 farms lend saws, they may all be in use upon arrival. Axes are not allowed on most farms.

— Select a tree to fit needs—and your living room—and saw close to the ground. Most pines and Douglas firs hold needles, while balsams and spruces lose them if not sufficiently watered.

— Many farms provide twine to tie trees to cars, but bring some rope. Tie the tree's base at the front of the car to prevent broken branches when putting it on the roof.

— When storing, place trees in a bucket of water in a cool area, but don't let water freeze.

— Trees will absorb more water if an inch or two of the base is removed before placing it in the stand. Cutting at an angle also helps absorption.

— Fill the stand with water daily.

— Avoid placing trees near heating ducts or open flames.

"Before decorating any tree, always check lights for frayed wires and make sure electrical outlets won't be overloaded," Ratke added.

Ford aids cities with grant applications

Congressman William D. Ford is working actively with local officials and with the Economic Development Administration to bring federal money—and jobs—into his 15th Congressional District, under provisions of the Public Works Employment Act.

The bill, passed by Congress in July in an override vote of President Gerald Ford's veto, authorizes some $3.95 billion to create an estimated 400,000 jobs throughout the United States.

Congressman Ford said most of the 21 communities and 16 school districts in his district have applied for funding under the public works section of the bill.

Applications have been filed for projects ranging from municipal buildings and fire stations to paving, sewers, hospital improvements, vocational education centers and social services facilities.

"My district, and the Detroit metropolitan area in general, has suffered more than any other area of the nation from unemployment," the Democratic congressman said. "This is the most effective federal program we have to bring money and jobs into the area and help put people back to work."

Ford in urging approval of the projects in the 15th District, emphasized that the money not only will provide jobs, but will provide needed public works to "improve the quality of life for local residents".

He added that local officials have responded in unexpected volume to the program, warning that "there will be many disappointments" when the grants are made.

"There just isn't enough money authorized in the bill to cover the nation's pressing needs," he (Continued on Page A-16)

Helps thicken weak turf

Fertilize now: Have green grass in spring

For grass that greens up early next spring without that rapid growth that sends you running for the lawn mower every few days, fertilize your lawn now.

"Dormant fertilization of lawns with a high nitrogen fertilizer around Thanksgiving or later is a good idea for a couple of reasons," said Paul Rieke, Michigan State University professor of crop and soil sciences. "The residual effect of a dormant fertilization can give an early green-up without a lot of growth, which means less mowing when the ground is wet. Clippings are fewer, too, and can be returned to the lawn rather than removed."

Fertilizing now helps thicken weak or sparse turf before spring weeds germinate. It also strengthens the turf to withstand the winter.

Among the drawbacks of late fertilization is the possibility that late growth could leave the turf more susceptible to winter injury. Though this is possible, Rieke pointed out that it is not common of fertilizer is applied at proper rates and the grass is kept mowed until growth completely stops in the fall.

"The potential for environmental contamination — pollution — by fertilizer runoff is the biggest drawback of dormant fertilization," he noted. "To avoid this, put on no more than one pound of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet. On sandy soils, cut that to three-fourths of a pound and be sure that some of the nitrogen is in a slow-release form."

"Slow-release fertilizer is much slower to dissolve and so less likely to be leached away than the readily soluble forms."

Fertilize before the ground freezes, he advised, to minimize fertilizer loss. And apply the material carefully. Use a spreader to put the fertilizer on the turf only, not on sidewalks or curbs or in the street or driveway.

"Fertilizer scattered on these hard surfaces would go straight into the storm sewers or ground water," he pointed out. "Turf, however, is a thick mat. Once fertilizer gets down to the soil through that tangle, it's not likely to go anywhere."

How many yule lights are enough?

Are three enough? Six too many? No, the topic isn't prunes. It's Christmas tree lights: how many strings of lights should you use on your tree to beautify it without overloading it?

Michigan State University Extension specialists suggest this simple guide for figuring the light-holding capacity of a Christmas tree: multiply the height of the tree by the average width (in feet), and then multiply that number by three. For example, a 6-foot tree with an average width of 2½ feet could comfortably hold about 45 lights (6x2½x3). For the minimum number for a tree that size, cut that figure in half.

To save energy and help keep the tree fresh, limit tree lighting to periods when it will be enjoyed the most. Never leave a lighted tree unattended.

The clinic Monday will be from 3 to 8 p.m. at Garden City East High School, 65000 Middle Belt Road, Garden City. This clinic will be staffed by volunteers from Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

According to Doug Vilnius, Influenza Project Coordinator, more than 170,000 residents have been inoculated at 103 scheduled Swine Flu clinics held in the out-county area. That figure includes 63,000 high risk individuals who have received their bivalent shots. Vilnius indicated that more than 50 percent of the out-county's high risk residents have been inoculated.

The 170,000 figure, however, does not represent shots administered in doctor's offices, industry, hospitals and nursing homes.

CYO seeks nominees for Ed Crowe honor

Do you know an adult volunteer who has done a good job of helping young people in CYO parish programs or community projects? Would you like to see that person receive recognition for exceptional devotion to the welfare of youth? Residents can nominate that person for the Ed Crowe Award, the highest honor the Detroit Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) can confer on a lay person for outstanding service over a period of at least two years in a CYO program or project. The awards will be presented at the annual CYO dinner at the Raleigh House on April 3. There is no limit to the number of Ed Crowe Awards which may be given out in any year. The only criterion is outstanding performance.

Anybody can nominate a man or woman for the award. Nomination forms now are available from the CYO office, ninth floor, Gabriel Richard Building, 305 Michigan Avenue, Detroit 48226, or by calling 963-7172. Residents can fill out as many nomination forms as they wish and do not have to be a member of the person's parish, or a Catholic, to make a nomination.

All nomination forms must be signed by both the nominator and the parish pastor, the parish youth director or by some other authorized person.

The deadline for returning the completed forms to the CYO office is Jan. 31, 1977. Any form that is postmarked not later than that time will be considered.

For further information on the nominating process, call the CYO. The public is invited to attend the awards dinner. Tickets cost $10 each and all seats will be reserved. Early reservations are recommended.

Mock Orange best for terrarium use

Whorls of waxy, olive-green and cream colored, laurel-like leaves at the ends of the branches of a sturdy-trunked shrub mark the Variegated Mock Orange (Pittosporum tobira 'variegatum'). Because it is a slow growing plant, it is an excellent choice for terrariums.

Horticulturists suggest that it also is a good subject for bonsai, because it tolerates root confinement and pruning well.

Pot Pittosporum in a soil made of two parts standard houseplant potting soil and one part sphagnum moss. Place it where it will get cool temperatures and the light from a sunny window. It can survive in much lower light, but it does best in bright light.

Allow the soil to dry between waterings, the experts advise. Mist the foliage regularly with warm water to keep the leaf edges from getting brown. High humidity — 30 percent or more — and plenty of fresh air are recommended.

Insects may be a problem on this plant. It is commonly a host for aphids, scale and red spider mites. Watch for these pests and treat at the first sign of an infestation.

Propagate Pittosporum by stem tip cuttings or seed.

The first tax shelter for the little guy.

If you're not now in an employer-sponsored pension or profit sharing plan where you work, act fast and you can save yourself a lot of tax dollars this year. You can postpone paying Federal income taxes on 15% of what you earn this year, up to a maximum of $1500.*

By opening an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at National Bank of Detroit by Dec. 31.

How it works.

An IRA is your own personal pension fund.

The money you put into the IRA, and the interest that money earns, are exempt from federal income taxes until the money is withdrawn.

At retirement age, when you begin to withdraw money, you're likely to be in a lower tax bracket, which means an additional tax reduction.

We'll help you set it up.

You can open an IRA at any NBD office. We'll answer your questions and help you select the NBD savings plan that's best for you. And you can walk away secure in knowing your money is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and by the substantial capital of Michigan's biggest bank.

Open your account now.

Interest rates on savings at NBD have never been higher — a full 7-1/2% annual interest over 6 years on Investment Savings Certificates in amounts of $1,000 or more. (Substantial interest penalty required for early withdrawal.)

Come in and open your IRA today. It's about time you got a tax break. But you have to act now.

*Has your company terminated its pension plan? Have you changed jobs so that you will receive money from your previous employer's pension plan? You can tax shelter that money in an IRA if you open the account within 60 days after you receive the funds.

Commissioners to double capacity of new county jail

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has voted to double the capacity of the 400-prisoner jail facility, planned for construction in downtown Detroit.

The county legislators at a Dec. 2 meeting authorized the project architects to add four cell stories to the 7-story building envisaged originally. This would increase the number of beds to 800.

The expansion, however, is subject to approval by the Michigan Department of Corrections.

County Commissioner Samuel A. Turner (D-Detroit) who proposed the expansion, said it would provide "the least costly and most efficient means of increasing (permanent) bed capacity." He noted there will be an estimated need for up to 1,500 jail beds over the next five years.

The new construction is being financed by a special 5-year levy of one-half mill (50 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation) approved by the voters last May 2. The millage will raise $35 million.

Commissioner Edgar L. Harris (D-Taylor), vice-chairman of the board's Public Works Committee, said the expansion would provide 400 additional cells at a cost of only $7 million, compared with the estimated $22 million cost of the originally-planned 400-cell building.

"We will be saving the taxpayers a lot of money by this approach," he told the board. "I don't know how else in the next five years we are going to come up with the additional cells that the Detroit-Wayne County Criminal Justice Coordinating Council predicts we will need."

The need for additional jail cells became acute two years ago when a panel of three Circuit Court judges imposed a 720-prisoner limit at the county jail, which had housed as many as 1,600 inmates.

In recent months the prisoner population has been running between 1,200 - 1,300.

To handle the excess, the Board of Commissioners voted to convert a vacant psychiatric building at the Wayne County General Hospital complex in Westland to a "semi-permanent" detention facility for 250 inmates. The facility began operating last Friday with the arrival of 75 prisoners.

The prisoners were transferred from the Detroit Police Headquarters overnight lockup which had been used for several months to house the jail overflow.

In a related action, the commissioners allocated $549,940 to fund continued use of three barracks at Detroit House of Correction for another 60 days.

Commissioner Turner said his plan to double the capacity of the new downtown detention facility could make it possible to end use of the former hospital building at some point in the future. Special permission from the State Department of Corrections was needed to permit the dormitory accommodations at the building.

Construction of the new downtown facility is expected to start in the spring. It will be located one block south of the present jail at St. Antoine and Beaubien.

Approval of Turner's proposal to expand the new downtown facility was recommended by the commissioners' Public Safety and Judiciary Committee.

Committee Chairman Lee Flowers expressed misgivings about having so large a concentration of prisoners in one facility. He noted that the federal government limits to 400 the inmate capacity of detention facilities that receive federal funds.

Commissioner Mary E. Dumas (R-Livonia) said she was concerned that expansion of the downtown building might preclude location of a permanent detention facility outside Detroit.

"I think that in order to obtain the court services which we need in the out-county area, both for criminal and civil cases, we will have to have a detention facility in Western Wayne County," she added.

However, Commissioner Conrad L. Mallett (D-Detroit) responded: "Simply being able to add to the downtown structure at an enormous savings does not preclude adding facilities out-county. In fact, reported increases in crime in the suburbs indicate we soon will want an 800-cell facility out-county as well."

As a result of opening of the new detention facility, Presiding Circuit Court Judge James N. Canham lifted his order requiring suburban police to keep prisoners in their local lockups pending pre-trial appearances. He lifted his order effective Monday.

Gardenia is hard houseplant to grow

Get your green thumb limbered up if you want to grow the gardenia.

According to horticulturists, the gardenia is a difficult houseplant. It is sensitive to cold drafts, high temperatures and low humidity. Flower bud drop and leaf drop are common reactions to any change in the environment.

The gardenia is a tender evergreen shrub. The best gardenia to grow as a houseplant is Gardenia jasminoides veitchii, a native of China. It is smaller than the standard florist's gardenia, but it is not as temperamental.

A south window in winter provides enough light. The plant cannot tolerate full sun in the summer, however. In insufficient light, flower buds fail to form.

Temperatures of 62-65 degrees at night and around 70 degrees during the day are ideal. Flower buds may fail to form if night temperatures are higher than 70 degrees or lower than 60.

High humidity — 30 percent or more — is necessary to prevent bud drop.

A standard potting soil mix of equal parts loam, sand and peat is adequate. It should be slightly acid, with a pH of 5.0-5.5. Improper pH may prevent flower bud formation. Fertilize every other week from January through September with an acid reaction fertilizer, and water as often as necessary to keep the soil evenly moist.

The gardenia may be

Creeping plant fun to grow

Pilea nummulariifolia, or Creeping Pilea, goes by the name Creeping Charlie in the greenhouse, but it is no relative to the garden weed of the same name.

A native of Latin America, found from the West Indies to Peru, this member of the pilea family is a creeping plant with small, round, slightly hairy leaves. It is a good terrarium plant or specimen for a hanging basket.

Pot in a humus soil made of equal parts loam, sand, peat and leaf mold; and water whenever the soil surface begins to dry out.

Place it where it will receive some bright light but no direct sun. Humidity of at least 30 percent is advised.

Propagation is by cutting rooted in moist sand or vermiculite. Because the creeping stems root easily at each node, propagation is not difficult.

Heartbreaker

Wayne cagers bow to Fordson in opener

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Fordson took a giant step Friday in establishing itself as the heir-apparent to Monroe's Great Lakes 8 Conference basketball throne as the visiting Tractors stunned Wayne Memorial 53-46 in the league opener for the two teams.

"The defense was there, but we couldn't generate enough offense," said Wayne's Bill Hawley. "The loss puts us up against the wall. We can't afford to lose many more in the league."

Wayne had several opportunities in the closing minutes of the game to tie the Tractors but couldn't capitalize on them.

Fordson was held to seven points in the first eight minutes of the duel while Tim Couch and Mike

Sports

Singleton, each with four points, paced the Zebras to a 11-7 lead. Fordson came back on the strength of Bob Perri's seven points to tie the game at 26-all at halftime. The deliberate-working Tractors outscored their hosts 10-7 and 17-13 in the final two periods.

Wayne missed its first seven shots of the third period and Fordson took advantage and never relinquished the lead, the spread was between three and five points the rest of the way.

Wayne lost the game at the foul line where Fordson canned 21 of 29 charities as compared to Wayne's 12 of 17 effort.

Fired-up Romulus buries Port Huron Central, 77-49

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

If there were any ill-effects caused by missing nine days of practice, Romulus High cagers didn't show them in their season opener against Port Huron Central.

Coach Jesse Meriweather's Eagles buried their non-conference rivals, 77-49.

"We looked beautiful," said Meriweather whose team was sidelined because of financial problems in the school district. (The district has since been able to raise enough money to sustain the basketball and wrestling programs.)

"We looked as if we were in mid-season form - we ran and shot well," Meriweather added.

Wendell Buckley drilled 10 of his game high 24 points to stake Romulus to a 24-6 first period lead. The Eagles went on to outscore their hosts 25-10 in the second period, taking an insurmountable 49-16 halftime lead.

Buckley and Al Lewis were the only Romulus players to hit in double figures. Lewis accounted for seven field goals and two free throws for 16 points 25-10 in the second period, taking an insurmountable 49-

16 halftime lead. Buckley and Al Lewis were the only Romulus players to hit in double figures. Lewis accounted for seven field goals and two free throws for 16 points.

Excessive fouls spelled trouble and defeat for Romulus at Ann Arbor Huron Friday night as Huron handed the Eagles their first setback 60-56.

"It became a one-sided free throwing contest with Huron going to the line almost every time I looked up," Meriweather said. "And, usually I ignore things like that but even the fans didn't like what they were seeing."

Huron capitalized on 18 of 21 foul shots while Romulus made eight of 12 - and that was the difference in the game.

Romulus edged its way to a 10-6 first period lead and Lewis rang up 10 of his game high 32 points in the second period to put his team out in front 30-20 at halftime.

Huron cut into the lead by three with a 15-12 third period and rallied to beat their visitors by coming out on top of a 25-14 last period.

Lewis rattled Huron from the floor, hitting on 14 baskets and four free throws for individual scoring honors. However, he was the only Romulus cager in double figures.

Up and at 'em

Northern Michigan guard Mike Garland (23) goes high with the shot over UM Duluth's Mike Vesel (50) in the first half of NMU's 69-60 setback at the hands of the Bulldogs in the championship game of the UMD Invitational last Saturday in Duluth. A senior who prepped at Belleville

High School, Garland is a two-year letterman for the Wildcats. Currently the 'Cats back-up point guard, he tallied six points in 23 minutes of action in Northern's two tournament contests. NMU opened with a 66-60 victory over UW Stout in Friday's first round game.

'The Bird' is coming to Romulus

If you didn't get an opportunity to see Mark "The Bird" Fidrych in action last season at Tiger Stadium, you'll have a chance to see the sensational Detroit Tiger hurler at Romulus High Jan. 7.

However, Fidrych will be wearing a basketball uniform as the Tigers clash with a team made up of Romulus teachers.

The cause is also a good one: to help raise money for the Romulus springs sports program.

Fidrych, recently selected as Tiger of the year and American League's Rookie of the Year, will be accompanied by teammates Mickey Stanley, Vern Riffe, Ben Oglivie, Jim Crawford, Tom Verzyer, Danny Meyer, Jerry Manuch, Marvin Lane and Chuck Scrivner.

The tickets will go on sale Saturday at $2.50. Tickets at the door will cost $3. They may be purchased from any Romulus High sophomore class member or from any member of the Romulus baseball team.

Tickets also may be purchased by mail by sending a check to Fred Coleman, 9650 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, Mich 48174. However, tickets by mail must be sent before Dec. 17.

Belleville to host swim relays Saturday

Sam Vicchy has waited seven long years for this season.

The veteran Belleville High head swim coach says this year's team "is my strongest and probably the most versatile."

Belleville, the defending Western Wayne Swimming & Diving champ, will unveil its invitational team on Saturday when Vicchy's Tigers host their annual Belleville Relays.

Four teams including Detroit Catholic Central, Wayne Memorial, Wyandotte and Fordson will be out to snatch the relays 7 title away from the Tigers.

Vicchy figures his team will be the one to catch.

Trenton to test Tiger cage machine

Belleville rips Allen Park in league opener

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Whether Belleville is a legitimate contender for the Suburban 8 Conference basketball championship could be decided Friday night when Coach Tom Niemi sends his Tigers up against Trenton.

Belleville tossed its hat into the title ring with an impressive 78-51 victory over Allen Park last Friday. The game brought the curtains up on the league year for both teams.

"I feel that Trenton with its outstanding height has to be a serious contender," Niemi said.

"They've lost a couple of close games but they're a fine ball club."

Belleville leaped on Allen Park for a quick 20-10 first period lead as balanced scoring supplied by Harold Dennis, Kevin Barnes, Roy Rutherford and Kelvin Patterson sparked the Tiger attack.

Belleville opened up the margin to 43-26 at halftime and Allen Park couldn't muster a suitable response in the second half.

"Defensively we were so much quicker than they were," Niemi pointed out. "Our defense also accounted for numerous steals which led to easy lay-ups."

All 13 Belleville players found their way into the scoring column. Barnes' 14 points stood up as the game's high and Dennis, with 10 points, was the only other Belleville player to reach double figures.

A hot-shooting Ypsilanti quintet, which shot 66 percent from the floor, spoiled Belleville's season opener 85-69 earlier last week.

Ypsilanti, loaded with senior talent, raced out in front 18-8 in the first period and held the advantage at intermission 41-23. Though the Tigers managed to come within five points in the final period, they never caught up.

Belleville's fourth period spurt was sparked by Herb Burrus, a sophomore guard who came off the bench and scored 10 of his 11 points in that stanza.

Ypsi's 6-4 senior forward, Scott Davis caused most of the damage to the Tiger defense as he piled up 10 field goals and seven free throws for a game high 27 points. Dennis Lewis chipped in with 21.

Five Belleville players counted double figures. Rutherford scored 17 while Dennis added 13 and Barnes and Burrus each settled for 11 points. Patterson finished with 10.

Belleville also capitalized on 19 of 27 free throws as compared to Ypsi's 11 of 20.

"Ypsi had a veteran ball club this season and our youth showed in the first half," Niemi said. "I feel our team displayed some class by coming back in the second half and outscoring them. I think the momentum carried over to Friday's game and I would like to see it continue."

Injury-riddled Franklin falls to Plymouth Salem

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Plymouth Salem shattered Livonia Franklin's dreams of getting off to a fast start in basketball this season as the Rocks crushed the crippled Patriots 76-52 opening night.

Franklin, ailing from injuries to starters Mike Kaseta and Dennis Smith kept pace for two quarters before crumbling in the third period.

In that period Salem outscored their rivals 22-8.

"That third quarter killed us," said Franklin Coach Bob Visser. "We managed to make a game of it for two periods but they got a couple of quick baskets just before the half to go up by eight and we never was in it after that."

Visser revealed that Smith will be lost to the team for at least a month. It was learned that the senior captain is suffering from mononucleosis.

Kaseta, a 6-4 center, is nursing a knee injury and sprained his ankle during the game. Mike is on the doubtful starting list for Friday's Northwest Suburban Conference opener against Thurston.

Salem, the defending Suburban 8 Conference champ, had it its way under the boards as Tom Ellinghauser sank seven shots from close range. His 14 points gave him a share of individual scoring honors with Franklin's Ken Scarpace.

Scarpace tied a Franklin free throw scoring record when he successfully converted 10 of 10 from the line. Former teammates Dan Pederson and Tim Dietz also have accomplished that feat.

Bill Wilson also scored in double figures, hitting on five baskets from the field for 10 points.

The Patriots hit on 16 or 22 free throws while Salem utilized 14 of 21. Salem grabbed an 18-14 first period lead, increased the margin to 38-30 at half and went ahead 60-38 on three periods.

Franklin lost its first five games last season, then came back after the New Year to put together a 16-8 season.

History just may repeat itself at the Livonia based high school.

KEVIN KASETA

Kaseta is ready for action

Kevin Kaseta, former Livonia Franklin all-state cager, was placed on the injury list after sustaining a knee injury in the University of Detroit's victory over Eastern Michigan University.

Kaseta, a 6-8½ junior, saw limited action against the University of Minnesota, playing a total of 10 minutes. Kevin took three shots in that span and hit on two and also hauled down three rebounds.

"His knee is giving him problems," said Kaseta's trainer. "However, he is responding to treatment and will be available for action Thursday."

Unbeaten Dolphins dunk Cherry Hill

By GEORGE WHITEHEAD
Special Correspondent

In yet another display of individual swimming strength and team depth, the Wayne Recreation Dolphins Swim Club Friday swept to a convincing 267-137 victory over Cherry Hill. The win was Wayne's fourth straight in Suburban Winter Conference action.

The Dolphins streaked to 34 first-place of the total 44 possible events, including 1-2-3 sweeps in nine individual events and first-second finishes in five. Wayne also claimed first and second places in each of two relays.

All in all, Coach Jim Lawrence's charges finished among the top three swimmers 77 times in individual events and the maximum five times in relays. (If each club had entered three swimmers in every event, which doesn't usually occur because of shortages in some age groups, there would have been a total possibility of 107 1-2-3 finishes).

Carol Miller, Mary Batterson, Gretchen Batterson and Mike

Greuber each gained three first-place ribbons for the Dolphins.

Miss Miller, swimming in the 10-under category, led Wayne sweeps in the 50-yard backstroke and the 50-yard freestyle and swam on the winning 200-yard freestyle relay team.

She was followed in the backstroke by Sarah Okray and Kim Tilley, who finished second and third, respectively, and by Kris Whitehead and Miss Tilley in the freestyle. Her teammates on the relay team were Lou Farkas, Peter Campbell and Kris Whitehead.

Mary Batterson easily won the girls' 11-12 butterfly and backstroke events, while teaming with Doug White, Eric Head and sister Catherine Batterson won the 100-free relay.

Gretchen Batterson won the 100-yard individual medley and the 50-yard breaststroke in addition to combining with Jack Underwood, Thelma Kew and Steve Mathony in the 200-yard freestyle relay. Miss

Westlanders edge champs for title

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

The Wayne-Westland Community School District continued its monopoly of the Western Wayne Invitational Wrestling crown as Westland John Glenn unseated perennial champ, Wayne Memorial, at the prestigious tournament held Saturday before 2,500 fans at John Glenn.

Glenn amassed a 12-point victory over its natural rival, cashing in on four individual first places and 213 points to win the title. Wayne garnered 201 points and had three individual weight class winners.

The third place team, Farmington, was far behind the leaders. It compiled 123½ points in the field of 12 competing high schools. Following the leaders were: Belleville (114½), Dearborn Heights Crestwood (94½), Taylor Center (83), Romulus (77), Plymouth Canton (76½), Dearborn Edsel Ford (65½), Livonia Bentley (44½), Garden City West (41) and Taylor Truman (4½).

"We're very happy to win this one," said Glenn Coach Bob Lusk whose Rockets were among the top 10 in the state last season. "However, we have a lot of work ahead of us."

"We wrestled very well as compared to our ragged performance in the opener against Plymouth Salem, (Glenn won 38-17) and it's always good to start the season by winning the Western Wayne."

Glenn claimed a gold medal in the 126-pound class where Nick Paciocco defeated Wayne's Randy Pittman 8-5 and the Rockets also took the gold in the 138-pound class when Mike Collin emerged from the mat with a 6-2 triumph over Corry Bachus.

Jim Meyer provided the Westlanders a first in the 178 pound class when he reached the finals and beat Farmington's Dean Schultz 10-4 and Mark Grabowski dueling Belleville's Bob Cook for the gold in the newly-created 191-pound category. The Westlander won on a 7-2 decision.

Wayne's first places went to Bo Wanshon (119), Tim Clark (132) and Chris Bachus (145). Wanshon dumped Dearborn Heights' Tim Jones 7-1 in the championship round while Clark was awarded the gold medal when Romulus' Ricky Morrison couldn't continue their match because of an injury and defaulted.

Bachus had to work into an overtime period before claiming his gold from Farmington's Marty Bona. The verdict went to Bachus 4-3.

Romulus and Belleville each had one representative in the winner's circle. Dennis Bergmooser turned back Farmington's Ron Stern 8-3 to win Romulus' only gold medal. Bergmooser is a 98-pounder.

Belleville's Don Woodby snatched the gold from Glenn's Jeff Doyle, edging his 165-pound rival 4-3.

Taylor Center's Ray Stanley earned the "Most Falls Award." He had piled up four in 11:55 in the 155-pound class.

Area wrestlers have a busy schedule this weekend.

Wayne will host its quadrangular meet Saturday at noon as wrestlers from Annapolis, Hazel Park and Farmington will be in town. Meanwhile, Glenn will seek its second tournament title of the year at the Trenton Invitational and Livonia Churchill heads for the Thurston Tournament.

Glenn, GC East cagers to clash in league opener

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Following the act of an undefeated football team may be difficult, but Westland John Glenn cagers also are putting their act together.

Glenn gridders posted their first perfect season (9-0) ever and the cagers have already strung together three successive victories.

Coach Gordie Davis and his Rockets' biggest test will come Friday night when they host always-stubborn Garden City East for their Northwest Suburban Conference opener.

The Rockets handed a quick-striking Cherry Hill quintet its first setback of the current campaign 79-61. Close after the first two periods - Glenn led 18-16 and 43-38 - the Westlanders took command in the third period by outscoring their non-conference rivals 13-7.

Glenn iced it with a 23-16 last period.

"They have a good basketball team over there," said Dick McNally, Cherry Hill's head coach. "I figure them to be one of the area powers this year. They have good balance and depth and their big kids are quick - what else can I say."

What also led to Cherry Hill's demise was a cold shooting streak in that pivotal third period. The Spartans utilized only three of 17 shots.

Four Glenn players made it into double figures with Dan Diadun's 22 points setting the pace for all scorers. Teammate Tom Jurewicz contributed 19 while Doug Martin added 12. Daren Armstrong had 10.

Cherry Hill's Keith Steward hit on nine field goals and two free throws for 20 points, the Spartans' high. Floyd Simmons and Dennis Gunn split 22 points between them.

The Westlanders canned 13 of 19 from the free throw line as compared to Cherry Hill's nine of 15.

Cherry Hill bounced back its next game by thrashing Melvindale 80-68 in the Tri-River Conference debut for both teams. The Spartans exploded to a 31-point second period to break away from the pesky Cardinals at halftime 49-30.

Cherry Hill had a slim 18-16 first period lead and outscored their rivals 15-13 in the third period.

The game, marred by numerous fouls - there were 70 called during the game - saw at least eight players head prematurely to the bench because of personals.

"It was an excessively physical ball game," McNally noted, "and it wasn't an enjoyable game to watch because of the fouls. I personally wasn't pleased with the caliber of our play."

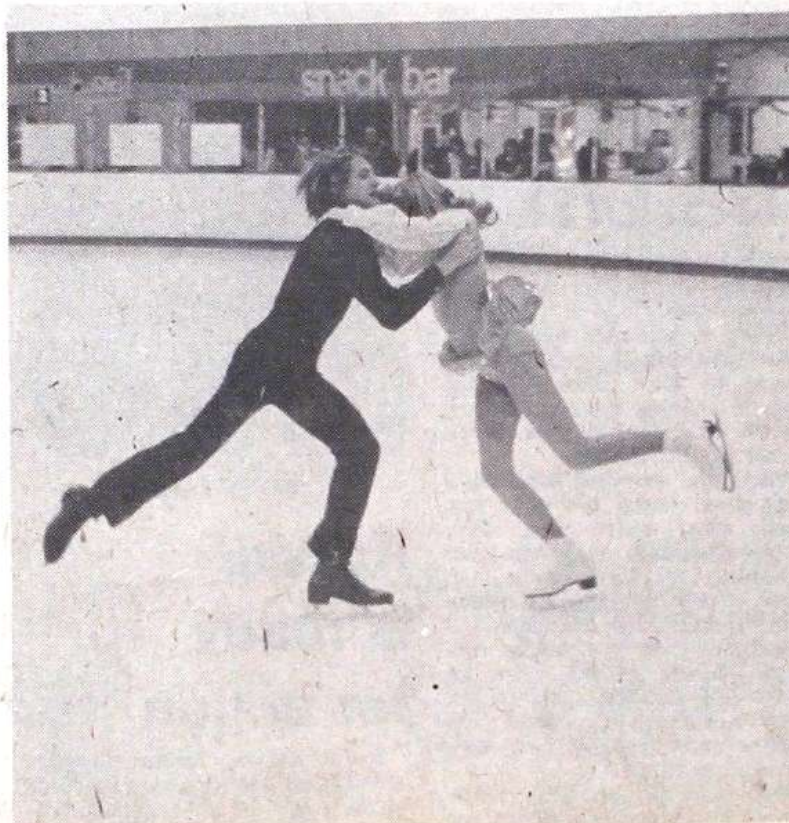

"However, winning the game was the only good thing about the entire evening," McNally added.

Jim Steudle, who sparked the second period Cherry Hill spurt with 12 points, wound up with 24, the game's high. Simmons accounted for 12 and Tim Corden counted 10 for the winners who made 24 of 41 free throws.

Melvindale, who received 20 points from John Drabek, finished with 28 of 44 at the foul line.

Cherry Hill will take on undefeated Riverside Friday night for its second league confrontation. Riverside is in a rebuilding process after losing all of its starters of a year ago.

"Because we haven't seen much of the new kids, we really don't know much about them," McNally said. "But they are always tough on their home court."

Olympics bound?

Going through the intricate and delicate figure skating program are Plymouth's Frank Grisa and Diane Balsley who were among the 180 contestants that took part in the Wayne ISIA Team Open Competition held over the weekend at the ice arena.

Glenn grapplers destroy Salem

John Glenn, the defending Northwest Suburban Athletic Conference champ, launched the 1976-77 wrestling season with a 38-17 victory over Plymouth Salem, the pre-season title favorite in the Suburban 8 Conference.

The Westlanders swept 10 of the 13 weight classes in the opener, getting victories on falls from Jay Snapp (105), Rick Eisiminger (145), Jim Meyer (165) Jeff Doyle (165) and Jim Meyer (178) and Mark Grabowski (JG).

Glenn has won the last five conference championships while Salem has been picked to unseat

Dearborn Edsel Ford as the next Suburban 8 Conference champ.

Kew and Monica Jones finished one-two in the 50-yard freestyle.

Greuber, also swimming in the 10-under class, captured the 50-yard butterfly and finished ahead of Farkas to give the Dolphins a one-two in the 50-yard freestyle. He also teamed with Jack Underwood, Tom Brown and Steve Mathony for a victory in the under-48-years freestyle relat.

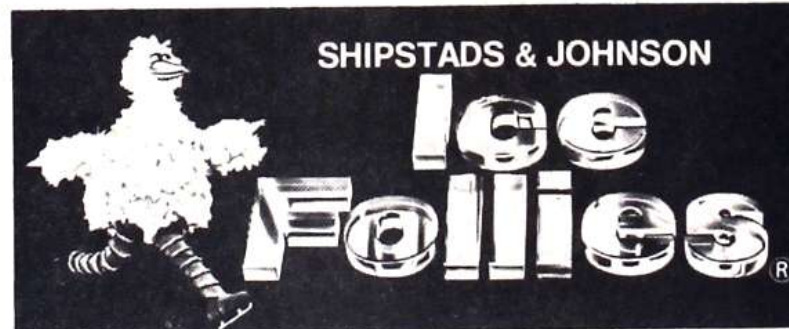

Brown was also an individual winner, pacing the Dolphins who gained two first-place ribbons. Brown led Jim Watts and Jeff Bryant in a Dolphin sweep of the 100-yard butterfly.

By Chester Kosin

Flat tires occur less frequently than they used to, but now and then every motorist eventually gets stuck with one. Removing the flat and putting on the spare is simple when an orderly series of steps is followed. To make the changing both easier and safer, in addition to jack, tire iron and lug wrench carry two wooden chocks, and warning flares and - or reflectors. No motorist on the road should be in the dark about how to change the tires on his car. It is an important skill to teach any new or old driver.

Choose emergency equipment for your foreign or domestic car from the full line of auto parts and accessories available at KOSIN'S AUTO PARTS, 26831 Michigan, Inkster! We carry all the parts and tools you need to keep your car running in top condition at all times. We also offer complete machine shop service with expert machinists turning brake drums, pressing wheel bearings and rebuilding engines. As specialists in foreign auto parts, we have a full inventory of parts for Toyota, Datsun, Fiat, Opel, Volkswagen, and other makes. Call us at 563-3894. We are open weekdays from 8 A.M. until 8 P.M., and Saturdays until 5 P.M.

Motor oil is the lifeblood of your car. The oil level should be between the "Add" mark and the "Full" mark.

The Saga of Ebenezer Squeezer

Ebenezer was a saver. Saved string, all sorts of things. Finally one day as he was searching through his cluttered abode, he became hopelessly lost amid the knicks and the knacks and the whats and the nots and was never heard from again.

Poor Ebenezer, if he had only known that he could have converted those no longer used items into quick cash by using the Want Ads. Life would have been beautiful... neater... more profitable.
